SLATON GIVES REASONS FOR COMMUTING FRANK

LEO M. FRANK BEGINS LIFE TERM ON FARM AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Prisoner Left Atlanta at Midnight Sunday Accompanied by Sheriff Wheeler Mangum and Several Deputies

MADE PART OF TRIP IN AN AUTOMOBILE

Frank Reaches Milledgeville and Is Assigned Duties on Prison Farm--Gives Out Statement Reasserting Innocence

Leo M. Frank Monday morning began serving his term of life imprisonment at the state prison farm at Milledgeville, the death sentence having been commuted by Governor John M. Slaton late Sunday night.

Frank was taken from the Fulton county tower on Butler street shortly before midnight. With two deputies he walked through the streets of the city to the Terminal station, was met there by Sheriff Mangum and boarded the Central of Georgia train which left Atlanta at 12:01 a. m. Reaching Macon two hours and forty-five minutes later, Frank was placed in an automobile and taken thirty miles through the country to Milledgeville. The gates of the prison farm closed on him at 4:30 a. m.

Sheriff Mangum and the two deputies, W. B. Roberts and John M. Sutles, returned immediately to Atlanta. They arrived here at 10:40 a. m. Sheriff Mangum willingly told reporters the events of the night before.

At 11:30 o'clock Sunday night he received the command of the prison commission to take Frank to Milledgeville. It was accompanied by the governor's order commuting sentence and the proper papers for the removal of the prisoner. The governor had spent all Saturday night making his decision. He finished dictating to his stenographer at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Then he snatched a few hours of sleep and Sunday afternoon telephoned to the jail that Frank's friends were to be denied admittance to his cell.

Frank retired for the night about 9:30 o'clock. He had received no intimation that he was not to hang Tuesday. Immediately on receipt of the commutation order Sheriff Mangum sent Deputy Roberts to Frank's cell. Without explaining what had happened Deputy Roberts woke Frank, who was sleeping soundly, and told him to get ready, that he was to be taken to the prison farm. While Frank doubtless drew his own conclusions from the statement he exhibited no surprise and asked no questions. He did not have time to gather up the books and paper with which he had surrounded himself since his arrest, nor even to pack a grip, but he quickly dressed, collected a few personal belongings, and six minutes after his notification left the cell where he has spent the last two years.

"God is directing my affairs and he will yet make my innocence known," Frank remarked as he was hurried from the jail, and later on the train, said "Everything will come out right in the end and I will be vindicated, for I am an innocent man."

The prisoner was not taken secretly from the jail. With Deputy Roberts and Deputy Sutles on either side, he walked out the front door and through the streets to the station. It was then but a few minutes to midnight. At the Terminal they were joined by Sheriff Mangum, who had gone ahead to purchase tickets. No attention was paid them at the station. They walked down the long steps to the train tracks and entered one of the ordinary night coaches. It was almost deserted and the party went unnoticed.

Macon was reached at 2:44 a. m. The journey was without incident. Frank slept most of the way. Only a few persons were at the station, but several of them were reporters and Frank was recognized for the first time since leaving the tower. The sheriff, his deputies and the prisoner went at once to a garage where Frank himself selected an automobile to take them to the farm. After getting gasoline the car sped out Spring street. Thirty minutes after reaching Macon, Frank and his guards had left the city.

Frank and Sheriff Mangum sat in the rear of the ca, two deputies and the driver in front. The two hours' journey to Milledgeville was made at top speed and at 4:30 o'clock the farm was reached. The prison guards had been notified and were waiting at the gates.

As Sheriff Mangum turned over Frank to them he remarked that Frank was a model prisoner and turning to him said, "Frank if you do as well down here as you did in the Fulton jail, you won't have a bit of trouble."

The sheriff and the deputies then returned in the automobile to Macon, while Frank entered the prison office and was registered as Convict No. 965.

Frank Issues Statement; Thanks Governor Slaton

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 21.—Expressing himself as grateful to Governor Slaton and to the thousands of friends who have remained loyal to him, Leo M. Frank, (Convict No. 965) today declared that he had felt intuitively certain that the governor would at least commute his sentence.

The prisoner said that he felt somewhat upset after his experience of last night, but that when he had accustomed himself to the changed surroundings he found at the prison farm he might have something further to say.

"But," he added, "I intend abiding the rules of the prison farm. I want also to reiterate my innocence, and to express a conviction that the day is not far distant when I will be exonerated.

After being measured this morning,

TEUTONS ARE STEADILY ADVANCING UPON THE CAPITAL OF GALICIA

Emperor William Is at Eastern Front Directing Austro-German Forces as They Close in on Lemberg

FURTHER FRENCH GAINS MADE NORTH OF ARRAS

Italians Resume General Attack on Austrian Positions but Encounter Strong and Well Organized Resistance

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Austro-German forces are closing in on Lemberg, capital of Galicia. The German war office today announced the capture of Rawa Ruska, thirty-two miles northwest of the city. Emperor William is at the eastern front directing the campaign, which his generals believe is near a successful conclusion.

Further French successes in northwestern France, north of Arras, as well as in Lorraine, and in the Vosgees, were reported today by the Paris war office. In Lorraine the capture of the German first line positions for a distance of nearly a mile is claimed. The fighting was of unusual violence.

After the severe storms of Saturday and Sunday the general attack on the Austrian positions by the Italians was resumed today with increased violence, according to a Udine, Italy, dispatch. The Italians now are encountering stronger and better organized resistance. The Austrian defenses are numerous and excellently prepared. In many cases they are cut into the rock. At other points deceptive false trenches have been constructed.

German Guns Pounding at Gates of Lemberg

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 21.—After seven weeks' battering across Galicia, during which the Russians have been thrown back more than 150 miles, the Austro-Germans today are as close to Lemberg as were the Germans to Paris last fall.

Never, perhaps, since before the battle of the Marne have the Teutonic allies appeared so confident of success. Having failed in their original plan of crushing France, and then, turning to Russia, they have reversed the order of their strategy, and now, judging by the expenditure of life and ammunition in Galicia, they have pinned their whole faith on annihilating the Russian army to permit the throwing of a tremendous weight of men and metal into the west, there either to break through the Franco-British line or force an interminable period of sanguinary warfare.

A dispatch from Copenhagen last night said that the German emperor himself had taken supreme command of the Galician campaign, establishing his headquarters in Silesia as near to the front as practicable.

Meanwhile the German official communication records the further progress of the Austro-German forces toward Lemberg, both to the north and south of the city. It claims, as well, that the Russians have been cleared from parts of the Dniester to the south.

The crisis of the Austro-German drive is evidently at hand. Grodek is secure in the possession of General von Mackensen's men, and the Germans and the Austrian corps under Field Marshal von Aux are reported by Berlin to be storming and capturing, one after another, Russian trenches along the entire front before Lemberg, extending from Rawa Ruska, in the north, to Janow, only eleven miles from the Galician capital.

This front is twenty-four miles in extent, and the fighting here has been the most stubborn. To the south, between Grodek and the Dniester marshes, the Russians also are being hard pressed.

Although the Russian war office has had little to say regarding the Galician campaign, unofficial reports from Petrograd declare that the rapid retirement of the Russian forces has been accomplished without demoralization and intimate that the Russian lines have been strengthened and put in a state of preparedness to meet the further advance of the vast forces being flung against them.

U. S. WILL DIRECT BRITAIN'S ATTENTION TO MISUSE OF FLAG

Question Probably Will Be Touched on in Note on Interruptions of Neutral Commerce

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—New representations to Great Britain on misuse of the American flag by English steamers probably will be made in the new note being prepared to deal further with interruptions to neutral commerce.

At the state department today it was said no official information was at hand on the German charge that the submarine U-29 was sunk by a British steamer flying the colors of Sweden. The British admiralty has denied it. Berlin takes the view that the incident has a bearing in the negotiations with the United States over submarine warfare. American officials, while not admitting the case has a bearing, are curious to know how the German admiralty got its information, inasmuch as all on the U-29 were reported lost.

Officials feel, however, that misuse of neutral flags complicates the issue with Germany.

ATLANTIAN BEATEN AND ROBBED NEAR CINCINNATI

Man Believed to Be F. J. Whiteside Attacked on River Steamer

The Journal received a special dispatch from Cincinnati Monday to the effect that T. J. Whiteside, of Atlanta, had been robbed and beaten on an Ohio river steamer near that city. No details were received.

The Journal could not find any T. J. Whiteside living in Atlanta, but does find that F. J. Whiteside, a traveling representative of the W. R. C. Smith Publishing company, residing in this city, is now in or near Cincinnati, and it is thought that this Mr. Whiteside is the one referred to in the telegram.

His wife, who was Miss Julia Fort, of Atlanta, had heard nothing of the affair beyond what information The Journal could give her. She believes, however, that Mr. Whiteside was not seriously hurt, else she would have been informed by the Cincinnati authorities.

Mr. Whiteside resides at 306 Juniper street.

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Oklahoma "grandfather clause," restricting the negro vote, was annulled as unconstitutional today by the supreme court.

"The grandfather clause" in the Annapolis (Md.) election statute was annulled as unconstitutional today by the supreme court.

Cars Ordered From U. S. to Carry Supplies From Vladivostok to Front

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, June 21.—Advices fro Vladivostok say munitions for Russia's armies are arriving at that seaport in great quantities.

Russian authorities have placed rush orders in the United States for cars to transport the supplies to the front.

GOVERNMENT WINS IN LACKAWANNA ROAD SUIT

Supreme Court Reverses Federal District Court in New Jersey

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The supreme court today reversed the federal district court in New Jersey which dismissed the government's Sherman law and commodities clause suit against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company.

The government charged the contract by which the railroad sold to the coal company its coal was not a bona fide transaction, and violated both the anti-trust law and the commodities clause of the Hepburn rate law.

It is the second suit of the government against the railroad under the commodities clause.

EIGHT VACATION SCHOOLS OPENED THIS MORNING

Forty-One Teachers and 1,000 Pupils Take Up Summer Work

Eight summer vacation schools, the first in the history of the city, opened in Atlanta Monday with an attendance of about 1,000 pupils, children who had failed of promotion or who wished to skip grades.

Forty-one teachers form the force in the vacation schools. They have spent the past week visiting the homes of the pupils and getting in touch with the parents, in order to have a good idea of the needs of the summer pupils.

The vacation schools are State, Lee, Calhoun, Hill, Moreland, Georgia Avenue, Boulevard and Walker.

BERLIN, June 21.—(Via London.) Emperor William, it was announced officially today, was present at the battle of Beskid for possession of the Grodek line, west of Lemberg.

NEW PEACE MOVE IS REPORTED HEADED BY ONE OF VILLA'S MEN

General Angeles' Artillery Officer, Is Said to Be on Way to Washington in Interest of the Movement

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Rumors of a new peace move by prominent Mexicans with General Felipe Angeles, formerly Villa's artillery chief, as its moving spirit, held the attention of officials here today.

Various reports from the border said Angeles had crossed into the United States, but none agreed as to his mission. Border agents of the government reported he was on his way to Boston to visit his family. Unofficial advices from El Paso said he was en route to Washington in connection with a new peace plan.

One version was that he would confer with Mexicans who have taken no part in the revolutionary activity, but who recently have been planning to form a coalition with some of the forces now in the field to enable them to get the "active moral support" which President Wilson recently announced the United States would soon give some group unless the warring factions could agree.

Although officials are watching closely changes in Mexican politics they are taking no hand in the developments.

Officials were greatly relieved today over unofficial advices that the armored cruiser Colorado, Admiral Howard's flagship, had arrived at Guaymas, near the Yaqui valley, where Americans have been threatened by the Indians. The marines are to be used to protect Americans if necessity arises, but Admiral Howard has orders to await further instructions from Washington before landing on Mexican territory.

Further reports of distressing conditions among Mexico's hungry civilian population continues to reach American Red Cross headquarters here.

Latest advices said that at least 20,000 persons were on the verge of starvation in the vicinity of Pachuca, and that American Consul General Shanklin at Vera Cruz had arranged to send several carloads of grain to Pachuca which had been shipped to him by the Red Cross.

A report from Guadalajara said thousands of persons would be in their graves before the end of the year unless assistance was given.

Consul Silliman at Vera Cruz confirmed reports of the acceptance of the resignations of four members of the Carranza cabinet. Previous advices said Obregon had demanded that the officials be retained. This development was regarded as a widening of the breach between Carranza and his principal commander.

William B. Cox, an American held at Chihuahua, on a counterfeiting charge, was released last Saturday.

STATEMENT GIVES A CLEAR REVIEW OF ALL IMPORTANT EVIDENCE

Governor Slaton's statement, in which he reviews and analyzes the conflicting testimony in the Frank case and in which he sets forth the grounds upon which he granted Leo M. Frank's application for a commutation of his sentence of death to one of life imprisonment, follows in full:

"Executive Office, June 21st, 1915.

"In Re Leo M. Frank, Fulton Superior Court. Sentenced to be executed, June 22nd, 1915.

"Saturday, April 26th, 1913, was Memorial Day in Georgia and a general holiday. At that time Mary Phagan, a white girl, of about 14 years of age, was in the employ of the National Pencil company, located near the corner of Forsyth and Hunter streets, in the city of Atlanta. She came to the pencil factory a little after noon to obtain the money due her for her work on the preceding Monday, and Leo M. Frank, the defendant, paid her $1.20, the amount due her, and this was the last time she was seen alive.

"Frank was tried for the offense and found guilty the succeeding August. Application is now made to me for clemency.

"This case has been the subject of extensive comments through the newspapers of the United States and has occasioned the transmission of over 100,000 letters from various states requesting clemency. Many communications have been received from citizens of this state advocating or opposing interference with the sentence of the court.

"I desire to say in this connection that the people of the state of Georgia desire the esteem and good will of the people of every state in the union. Every citizen wishes the approbation of his fellows and a state or nation is not excepted. In the preamble to the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson wrote that 'When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitles them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.'

OUTSIDE CRITICISM.

"Many newspapers and multitudes of people have attacked the state of Georgia, because of the conviction of Leo M. Frank and have declared the conviction to have been through the domination of a mob and without sufficient evidence to support the verdict. This opinion has been formed to a great extent by those who have not read the evidence and who are unacquainted with the judicial procedure in our state.

"I have been unable to even open a large proportion of the letters sent me, because of their number and because I could not through them gain any assistance in determining my duty.

"The murder committed was a most heinous one. A young girl was strangled to death by a cord tied around her throat and the offender deserves the punishment of death. The only question is as to the identity of the criminal.

"The responsibility is upon the people of Georgia to protect the lives of her citizens and to maintain the dignity of her laws, and if the choice must be made between the approbation of citizens of other states and the enforcement of our laws against offenders, whether powerful or weak, we must choose the latter alternative.

AS TO MOB COERCION.

"It is charged that the court and jury were terrorized by a mob, and the jury were coerced into their verdict.

"I expect to present the facts in this case with absolute fairness, and to state conditions with regard only to the truth.

"When Frank was indicted and the air was filled with rumors as to the murder and mutilation of the dead girl, there was intense feeling, and to such extent that my predecessor, Governor Brown, stated in argument before me that he had the militia ready to protect the defendant in the event any attack was made. No such attack was made and from the evidence that he obtained none was contemplated.

"Some weeks after this the defendant was put on trial. Georgia probably has the broadest provisions for change of venue in criminal cases that exist in any state. Our law permits the judge to change the venue on his own motion, in the event he thinks a fair trial cannot be given in any county. The defendant can move for a change of venue on the same ground, and if it be refused, the refusal of the judge is subject to an immediate appeal to the supreme court, and in fact, the entire genius of our law demands fair trial, absolutely free from external influence.

"Frank went to trial without asking a change of venue, and submitted his case to a jury that was acceptable to him. He was ably represented by counsel of conspicuous ability and experience.

"During the progress of the case, after evidence had been introduced laying the crime, with many offensive details, upon Frank, the feeling against him became intense. He was the general superintendent of the factory, and Mary Phagan was a poor working girl. He was a Cornell graduate, and she dependent for her livelihood upon her labor. According to all witnesses, whose testimony will subsequently be related more completely, when the girl came to get her small wages she only worked one day in the week, because of lack of material, this general superintendent solicited her to yield to his importunities, and, on her refusal, slew her.

"The relation of these facts anywhere and in any community would excite unbounded condemnation.

FEELING RAN STRONG.

"If in the audience in the court room manifested their deep resentment toward Frank, it was largely by this evidence of feeling beyond the power of a court to correct. It would be difficult anywhere for an appellate court, or even a trial court, to grant a new trial in a case which occupied thirty days, because the audience in the court room upon a few occasions indicated their sympathies. However, the deep feeling against Frank which developed in the progress of the evidence was in the atmosphere and regardless of the commission of those acts of which the court would take cognizance, the feeling of the public was strong.

"Since Governor Brown has related secret history in his public argument before me, I may state that Friday night before the verdict was expected Saturday, I had the sheriff to call at the mansion and inquired whether he anticipated trouble. This was after many people had told me of possible danger, and an editor of a leading newspaper indicated his anticipation of trouble. The sheriff stated he thought his deputies could avert any difficulty. Judge Roan telephoned me that he had arranged for the defendant to be absent when the verdict was rendered. Like Governor Brown, I entered into communication with the colonel of the Fifth

Governor Asks All To Read Statement On the Frank Case

"All I ask is that the people of Georgia read my statement and consider calmly the reasons that I have given for commuting Leo M. Frank's sentence to life imprisonment," said Governor John M. Slaton Monday.

"Feeling as I do about this case I would be a murderer if I allowed that man to hang.

"I would rather be ploughing in a field than to feel for the rest of my life that I had that man's blood on my hands." Governor Slaton was up practically the whole of Sunday night, answering telephone calls and following the route of Frank by telephone.

The governor discussed with reporters some of the points, which led him to commute the sentence, when he was making public his formal statement. He showed a remarkable familiarity with the record, for one who has studied it so short a time, and when reporters remarked on the fact, he said:

"I have learned that record almost by heart—Mr. Dorsey himself, I don't believe, is more familiar with the record than I am."

The governor is positive in his statements, indicating that all doubt of the guilt of Conley, and the innocence of Frank has been removed from his mind by his careful study of the facts in the case.

PHYSICIANS MEETING AT SAN FRANCISCO

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Physicians and surgeons from all parts of the country were here today at the opening of the annual convention of the American Medical association. They include General W. C. Gorgas, surgeon general of the United States army, Dr. W. J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., and Dr. Victor V. Vaughan, of Washington, president of the association. The convention will continue throughout the week.

JUDGE HILL FINES DR. ROUGHLIN $500

Attorney Takes a Supersedeas and May File an Appeal Later

Dr. Louis C. Roughlin, who was last Friday convicted on the charge of involuntary manslaughter in the death of little Hugh E. Murray, Jr., which occurred in his office while the child was under the influence of an anaesthetic, was Monday morning fined $500 by Judge Hill.

Judge Hill declared that the verdict of guilty was in itself a great punishment to a young doctor in his early career, but that he could not treat the case lightly and must impose a fine. Dr. Roughlin is still under bond. His attorneys have taken a supercedeas and may file an appeal later.

DELEGATES ARE ELECTED TO FRATERNAL UNION

C. C. Gillett, James L. Mayson and A. R. Marbut Are Named

Charles C. Gillett, James L. Mayson and Arthur R. Marbut have been chosen to represent their lodges at the district convention of the Fraternal Union of America, which will be held in Atlanta July 1. Headquarters have been established at the Winecoff hotel.

This order, having headquarters in Denver and in Lawrence, Kan., has been divided into thirty-four districts, and conventions will be held at the same time in each district. The Atlanta district comprises the states of Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida.

James L. Mayson, city attorney and charter member of Atlanta lodge No. 34, has been selected to deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the city. The address on behalf of the local lodges will be delivered by John Y. Smith, of Jewell lodge No. 713.

The Fraternal Union of America is one of the strongest beneficiary societies admitting both men and women on equal terms. The supreme body will meet in Pasadena, Cal., July 27-29. Newman Laser, for the past eighteen years connected with the society, will head the representatives elect to the Pasadena meeting.

WOULD-BE DESPERADOES COME TO GRIEF; REFORM

ROME, Ga., June 21.—After deciding that a bandit's life was the life for them, and determined to follow the example of heroes in moving pictures, three Alabama City youngsters, Clifford Campbell, Albert Ramsey and Arthur Franklin, came to grief here. After being jailed for some minor offense in Alabama City, they escaped and came to Rome, where they were arrested and jailed. They declare that they are through searching for thrills, and will be content to remain at home hereafter.

GOVERNOR SLATON'S STATEMENT

regiment, who stated he would be ready if there were necessity.

"I was leaving on Saturday, the day the verdict was expected, for Colorado Springs to attend the congress of the governors, and did not wish to be absent if my presence were necessary. I have now the original order prepared by me at the time, in the event there were a necessity for it. I became convinced there would be slight chance for any use of force and therefore filled my engagement in Colorado.

"Judge Roan, in the exercise of precaution, requested that both counsel and defendant be absent when the verdict was rendered, in order to avoid any possible demonstration in the event of acquittal.

"The jury found the defendant guilty and with the exception of demonstration outside the court room, there was no disorder.

"Hence, it will be seen that nothing was done which courts of any state would correct through legal machinery. A court must have something more than an atmosphere with which to deal, and especially when that atmosphere has been created through the processes of evidence in disclosing a horrible crime.

"Our supreme court, after carefully considering the evidence as to demonstrations made by spectators, declared them without merit, and in this regard the verdicts of juries and our tribunals are not subject to criticism.

RACIAL PREJUDICE.

"The charge against the state of Georgia of racial prejudice is unfair. A conspicuous Jewish family in Georgia is descended from one of the original colonial families of the state. Jews have been presidents of our boards of education, principals of our schools, leaders of our cities, and conspicuous in all our commercial enterprises.

"Many newspapers and non-residents have declared that Frank was convicted without any evidence to sustain the verdict. In large measure, those giving expression to this utterance have not read the evidence and are not acquainted with the facts. The same may be said regarding many of those who are demanding his execution.

"In my judgment, no one has a right to an opinion who is not acquainted with the evidence in the case, and it must be conceded that only those who saw the witnesses and beheld their demeanor upon the stand are in the best position as a general rule to reach the truth.

"I cannot, within the short time given me to decide the case, enter into the details outlined in thousands of pages of testimony. I will present the more salient features, and have a right to ask that all persons who are interested in the determination of the matter, shall read calmly and dispassionately the facts.

THE STATE'S CASE.

"The state proved that Leo M. Frank, the general superintendent of the factory, was in his office a little after 12 o'clock on the 26th day of April, 1913, and he admitted having paid Mary Phagan $1.20, being the wages due her for one day's work. She asked Frank whether the metal had come, in order to know when she could return to work. Frank admits this and so far as is known, he was the last one who saw her alive. At 3 o'clock the next morning—Sunday—Newt Lee, the night watchman, found in the basement the body of Mary Phagan strangled to death by a cord of a kind kept generally in the building which Frank's office floor. She had a cloth tied around her head which was torn from her underskirt. Her tongue protruded, her eyes were cut and some blood and xxxx were upon them. Her eye was very black, indicating a blow, and there was a cut two and a half inches in length about four inches above the ear and to the left thereof, which extended through the scalp to the skull. The county physician who examined her on Sunday morning declared there was no violence xxxx and that there was characteristic of xxxx flow. There were no external signs of rape. The body was not mutilated, the wounds thereon being on the head and scratches on the elbow, and a wound about two inches below the knee.

"The state showed that Mary Phagan had eaten her dinner of bread and cabbage at 11:30 o'clock and had caught the car to go to the pencil factory which would enable her to arrive at the factory within the neighborhood of about thirty minutes, the element of exact time will be discussed later.

"Dr. Harris, the secretary of the state board of health, and an expert in this line, examined the contents of Mary Phagan's stomach ten days after her burial and found from the state of the digestion of the cabbage and bread, that she must have been killed within about thirty minutes after she had eaten the meal.

"Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, testified that Frank had 'told me to be back at the factory at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon,' and when he came upstairs to report, Frank, rubbing his hands met Newt Lee and told him to go out and have a good time until 6 o'clock, although Lee said he would prefer to lie down and sleep. When Lee returned, Frank changed the slip in the time clock, manifesting nervousness and taking a longer time than usual.

"When Frank walked out of the front door of the factory, he met a man named Gantt, whom he had discharged a short time before. Frank looked frightened, his explanation being that he anticipated harm. Gantt declared he wished to go upstairs and get two pairs of shoes which permission Frank finally granted, stating that he thought they had been swept out.

"About an hour after this occurrence, Frank called up Lee over the telephone, a thing he had never done before, and asked him if everything was all right at the factory. Lee found the double iron door locked, which he had never found that way before. Subsequently, when Lee was arrested and Frank was requested by the detectives to go in and talk to him in order to find what he knew, Lee says that Frank dropped his head and stated 'if you keep that up, we will both go to hell.'

LEE DISCOVERS BODY.

"On Sunday morning at about 3 o'clock, after Newt Lee, the night watchman, had telephoned the police station of the discovery of the dead body and officers had come to the factory, they endeavored to reach Frank by telephone, but could not get a response. They telephoned at 7:30 Sunday morning and told Frank that they wanted him to come down to the factory and when they came for him, he was very nervous and trembled. The body at that time had been taken to the undertakers, and according to the evidence of the officers who took Frank by the undertaker's establishment to identify the girl, he (Frank) showed a disinclination to look at the body and did not go into the room where it lay, but turned away at the door.

"Frank had made an engagement on Friday to go to the baseball game on Saturday afternoon with his brother-in-law, but broke the engagement, as he said in his statement, because of the financial statement he had to make up, while before the coroner's jury, he said he broke the engagement because of threatening weather.

"The contention of the state, as will hereafter be discussed, was that Frank remained at the factory Saturday afternoon to dispose of the body of Mary Phagan, and that that was the reason he gave Newt Lee his unusual leave of absence.

"The cook's husband testified that on Saturday, the day of the murder, he visited his wife at the home of Mr. Selig, defendant's father-in-law, where Frank and his wife were living, and that Frank came in to dinner and ate nothing. The negro cook of the Seligs was placed upon the stand and denied that her husband was in the kitchen at all on that day. For purposes of impeachment, therefore, and as she claimed under duress, which tended to substantiate the story of her husband and which affidavit declared that on Sunday morning after the murder, she heard Mrs. Frank tell her mother that Mr. Frank was drinking the night before and made her sleep on a rug and called for a patrol to shoot himself, because he (Frank) had murdered a girl. This affidavit was relevant for purposes of impeachment, although, of course, it had no legal evidentiary value as to the facts contained therein. On the stand, the cook declared that she was coerced by her husband and detectives under threat of being locked up unless she gave it, and it was made at the station house. The state proved it was given in the presence of her lawyer and said that her denial of the truth of the affidavit was because her wages had been increased by the parents of Mrs. Frank. No details are given as to where the conversation occurred between Mrs. Frank and her mother, nor is there any explanation as to how she happened to hear the conversation. It will be easily seen that the effect of the affidavit upon the jury might be great.

"It is hard to conceive that any man's power of fabrication of minute details could reach that which Conley showed, unless it be the truth.

THE TIME SLIP.

"The evidence introduced tended to show that on Sunday morning Frank took out of the time clock the slip which he had admitted at that time was punched for each half hour, and subsequently Frank claimed that some punches had been missed. The suggestion was that he had either manipulated the slip to place the burden on Lee, or was so excited as to be unable to read the slip correctly.

"The state introduced a witness, Monteen Stover, to prove that at the time when Mary Phagan and Frank were in the metal room she was in Frank's office and he was absent, although he had declared he had not left his office. The state showed that the hair of Mary Phagan had been washed by the undertaker with pine tar soap, which would change its color and thereby interfere with the ability of the doctor to tell the similarity between the hair on the lathe and Mary Phagan's hair.

"The state further showed a cord of the character which strangled Mary Phagan was found in quantities on the metal room floor, and was found in less quantities and then cut up in the basement. As to this Detective Starnes testified, 'I saw a cord like that in the basement, but it was cut up in pieces. I saw a good many cords like that all over the factory.'

"Holloway testified: 'These cords are all over the building and in the basement.'

"Darley testified to the same effect.

"However, this contradicts the testimony which was presented to the jury for solution.

"The state claimed to the jury that witnesses for the defendant, under the suggestion of counsel, would change their testimony so that it might not operate against the defendant.

"I have not enumerated all the suspicious circumstances urged by the state, but have mentioned what have appeared to me the most prominent ones. Where I have not mentioned the more prominent ones, an inspection of record fails to maintain the contention.

"It is contended that a lawyer was engaged for Frank at the station house before he was arrested. This is replied to by the statement that a friend had engaged counsel without Frank's knowledge, and the lawyer advised Frank to make a full statement to the detectives.

JIM CONLEY'S TESTIMONY.

"The most startling and spectacular evidence in the case was that given by a negro, Jim Conley, a man twenty-seven years of age, and one who frequently had been in the chaingang. Conley had worked at the factory for about two years and was thoroughly acquainted with it. He had worked in the basement about two months and had run the elevator about a year and a half.

"On May 1 he was arrested by the detectives.

"Near the body in the basement had been found two notes, one written on brown paper and the other on a leaf of a scratch pad. That written on white paper is a negro's handwriting showed the following:

"'He said he would love me, lay down play like the night witch, did it, but that long, tall black negro did boy himself.'

"On the brown paper, which was the carbon sheet of an order blank headed 'Atlanta, Ga., ——, 190—,' which therefore becomes important, was written in a negro's handwriting the following:

"'Mam that negro fire down here did this i went to make xxxx and he push me down a hole a long tall negro black did (had) it. I write while play with me.'

"The detectives learned about the middle of May that Conley could write, although at first he denied it. He made one statement and three affidavits, which are more fully referred to in stating the defendant's case. The affidavits were introduced by the defendant under notice to produce.

"By these affidavits there was admitted the substance of the evidence that he delivered on the stand, which, in brief, was as follows:

"Conley claimed that he was asked by Frank to come to the factory on Saturday and watch for him, as he previously had done, which he explained meant that Frank expected to meet some woman; and when Frank stamped his foot Conley was to lock the door leading into the factory; and when he whistled, he was to open it.

WHERE CONLEY HID.

"Conley occupied a dark place to the side of the elevator behind some boxes, where he would be invisible.

"Conley mentioned several people, including male and female employes, who went up the steps to the second floor where Frank's office was located. He said that Mary Phagan went up these stairs and he heard in a few minutes footsteps going back to the metal room, which is from 150 to 200 feet from the office. He heard a scream and then he dozed off. In a few minutes Frank stamped and then Conley locked the door and then Frank whistled, at which time Conley unlocked the door and went up the steps. Frank was shivering and trembling and told Conley, 'I wanted to be with the little girl and she refused me and I struck her and I guess I struck her too hard and she fell and hit her head against something, and I do not know how bad she got hurt. Of course, you know I ain't built like other men.'

PERVERSION NOT SHOWN.

"Conley described Frank as having been in positions which Conley thought indicated perversion, but the facts set out by Conley do not demand such conclusion.

"Conley says that he found Mary Phagan lying in the metal room some 200 feet from the office, with a cloth tied about her neck and under the head as though to catch blood, although there was no blood at the place.

"Frank told Conley to get a piece of cloth and put the body in it and Conley got a piece of striped bed tick and tied up the body in it and brought it to a place a little way from the dressing room and dropped it and then called on Frank for assistance in carrying it. Frank went to his office and got a key and unlocked the switchboard in order to operate the elevator, and he and Conley took the body in the elevator down to the basement, where Conley rolled the body off the cloth. Frank returned to the first floor by the ladder, while Conley went by the elevator and Frank on the first floor got into the elevator and went to the second floor on which the office is located. They went back into Frank's office and just at that time Frank said, 'My God, here is Emma Clark and Corinthia Hall,' and Frank then put Conley into the washcloset and then Frank let Conley out and asked Conley if he could write, to which Conley gave an affirmative reply. Frank then dictated the letters heretofore referred to. Frank took out of his desk a roll of greenbacks and told him, 'Here is $90,' but after a while requested the money back and got it.

"One witness testified she saw some negro, whom she did not recognize, sitting at the side of the elevator in the gloom. On the extraordinary motion for new trial, a woman, who was unimpeached, made affidavit that on the 31st day of May, through newspaper report, she saw that Conley claimed he met Frank by agreement at the corner of Forsyth and Hunter streets on the 26th of April, 1913, and she became satisfied that she saw the two in close conversation at that place on that date between 10 and 11 o'clock.

"Frank put his character in issue and the state introduced ten witnesses attacking Frank's character, some of whom were factory employes, who testified that Frank's reputation for lasciviousness was bad and some told that he had been seen making advances to Mary Phagan, whom Frank had professed to the detectives, either not to have known, or to have been slightly acquainted with. Other witnesses testified that Frank had improperly gone into the dressing room of the girls. Some witnesses who answered on direct examination that Frank's reputation for lasciviousness was bad, were not cross-examined as to details, and this was made the subject of comment before the jury.

"The above states very briefly the gist of the state's case, omitting many incidents which the state claims would confirm Frank's guilt when taken in their entirety.

DEFENSE'S CONTENTIONS.

"The defendant introduced approximately 100 witnesses as to his good character. They included citizens of Atlanta, college mates at Cornell and professors of that college.

"The defendant was born in Texas and his education was completed at the institution named.

"The admission of Conley that he wrote the notes found at the body of the dead girl, together with the part he admitted he played in the transaction, combined with his history and his explanation as to both the writing of the notes and the removal of the body to the basement, make the entire case revolve about him. Did Conley speak the truth?

"Before going into the varying and conflicting affidavits made by Conley, it is advisable to refer to some incidents which cannot be reconciled to Conley's story. Wherever a physical fact is stated by Conley, which is admitted, this can be accepted, but under both the rules of law and of common sense, his statements cannot be received, excepting where clearly corroborated. He admits not only his participation as an accessory, but also glibly confesses his own infamy.

"One fact in the case, and that of most important force in arriving at the truth, contradicts Conley's testimony. It is disagreeable to refer to it, but delicacy must yield to necessity when human life is at stake.

"The mystery in the case is the question as to how Mary Phagan's body got into the basement. It was found 136 feet away from the elevator and the face gave evidence of being dragged through dirt and cinders. She had dirt in her eyes and mouth. Conley testified that he and Frank took the body down to the basement in the elevator on the afternoon of April 26, 1913, and leaves for inference that Frank removed the body 136 feet toward the end of the building, where the body was found at a spot near the back door which led out towards the street in the rear. Conley swears he did not return to the basement, but went back up in the elevator, while Frank went back on the ladder, constituting the only two methods of ingress and egress to the basement, excepting through the back door. This was between 1 and 2 o'clock on the afternoon of April 26.

"Conley testified that on the MORNING of April 26th he went down into the basement and relieved his bowels and utilized the elevator shaft for the purpose.

"On the morning of April 27, at 3 o'clock, when the detectives came down into the basement BY WAY OF THE LADDER, they inspected the premises, including the shaft, and they found there human excrement in natural condition.

ELEVATOR HAD NOT RUN.

"Subsequently, when they used the elevator, which everybody, including Conley, who had run the elevator for one and a half years, admits, only stops by hitting the ground in the basement, the elevator struck the excrement and smeared it. Conley testified that the elevator had not been used since Conley had been there. Solicitor Dorsey, Mr. Howard and myself visited the pencil factory and went down this elevator and we found it hit the bottom. I went again with my secretary with the same result.

"Frank is delicate in physique, while Conley is strong and powerful. Conley's place for watching, as described by himself, was in the gloom a few feet from the hatchway, leading by way of ladder to the basement. Also he was in a few feet of the elevator shaft on the first floor. Conley's story in the elevator shaft was in accordance with his testimony that he made xxxx twice against the door of the elevator shaft on the morning of the 26th, instead of doing so in the gloom of his corner behind the boxes where he kept watch.

"Mary Phagan coming down stairs, was compelled to pass within a few feet of Conley, who was invisible to her and in a few feet of the hatchway. Frank could not have carried her down the hatchway. Conley might have done so with difficulty. The elevator shaft was not used by Conley and Frank in taking the body to the basement, then the explanation of Conley, who admittedly wrote the notes found by the body, cannot be accepted.

GOVERNOR JOHN M. SLATON'S STATEMENT

"In addition, there was found in the elevator shaft at 3 o'clock Sunday morning the parasol, which was unhurt, and a ball of cord, which had not been mashed.

CONLEY'S INCONSISTENCIES.

"Conley in his affidavit before the detectives testified he wrapped up the body in a crocus sack at the suggestion of Frank, but on the trial he testified he wrapped up the body in a piece of bed-tick 'like the shirt of the solicitor general.' The only reason for such change of testimony, unless it be the truth, was that a crocus sack unless split open would be too small for the purpose. If he split open the crocus sack with a knife, this would suggest the use of a knife in cutting the xxxx of the girl.

"So the question arises, whether there was any bed-tick in the pencil factory, and no reason can be offered why bed-tick should be in a pencil factory. It has no function there. Had such unusual cloth been in the factory, it certainly must have been known, but nobody has ever found it.

"Conley says that after the deed was committed, which everybody admits could not have been before 12:05, Frank suddenly said: 'Here comes Emma Clark and Corinthia Hall,' and put Conley in a wardrobe.

"The uncontradicted evidence of these two witnesses, and they are unimpeached, was they reached the factory at 11:35 a. m., and left it at 11:45 a. m., and therefore this statement of Conley can hardly be accepted.

"Conley says that when they got the body to the bottom of the elevator in the basement, Frank told him to leave the hat, slipper and piece of ribbon right there, but he 'taken the things and pitched them over in front of the boiler,' which was fifty-seven feet away.

"Conley says that Frank told him when he watched for him to lock the door when he Frank stamped and to open the door when he whistled. In other words, Frank had made the approach to the girl and had killed her before he had signalled Conley to lock the door.

"Conley says, 'I was upstairs between the time I locked the door and the time I unlocked it.' 'I unlocked the door before I went upstairs.' This explanation is not clear, nor is it easy to comprehend the use of the signals which totally failed their purpose.

"It is curious during the course of the story that while Frank explained to Conley about striking the girl when she refused him and Conley found the girl strangled with a cord, he did not ask Frank anything about the use of the cord, and that subject was not mentioned.

"The wound on Mary Phagan was near the top of the head and reached the skull. Wounds of that character bleed freely. At the place Conley says he found the body there was no blood. Conley says there was a cloth tied around the head as though to catch the blood, but none was found there.

HAIR ON LATHE.

"One Barrett says that on Monday morning he found six or seven strands of hair on the lathe with which he worked and which were not there on Friday. The implication is that it was Mary Phagan's hair and that she received a cut by having her head struck at this place. It is admitted that no blood was found there. The lathe is abount three and half feet high and Mary Phagan is described as being chunky in build. A blow which would have forced her with sufficient violence against the smooth handle of the lathe to have produced the wound must have been a powerful one, since the difference between her height and that of the lathe could not have accounted for it. It was strange, therefore, that there was a total absence of blood and that Frank, who was delicate, could have hit a blow of such violence.

"Some of the witnesses for the state testified the hair was like that of Mary Phagan, although Dr. Harris compared Mary Phagan's hair with that on the lathe under a microscope and was under the impression it was not Mary Phagan's hair. This will be the subject of further comment.

"Barrett and others said they thought they saw blood near the dressing room, at which place Conley said he dragged the body.

"Chief of Police Beavers said he did not know whether it was blood.

"Detective Starnes said, 'I do not know that the splotches I saw was blood.'

"Detective Black says, 'Mr. Starnes, who was there with me, did not call my attention to any blood splotches.'

"Detective Scott says, 'We went to the metal room where I was shown some spots supposed to be blood spots.'

"A part of what they thought to be blood was chipped up in four or five chips and Dr. Claude Smith testified that on ONE of the chips he found, under a microscope, from three to five blood corpuscles, a half drop would have caused it.

"Frank says that the part of the splotch that was left after the chips were taken up was examined by him with an electric flash lamp, and it was not blood.

"Barrett, who worked on the metal floor, and who several witnesses declare claimed a reward because he discovered the hair and blood, said the splotch was not there on Friday, and some witnesses sustained him.

"There was testimony that there were frequent injuries at the factory and blood was not infrequent in the neighborhood of the ladies' dressing room. There was no blood in the elevator.

"Dr. Smith, the city bacteriologist, said that the presence of blood corpuscles could be told for months after the blood had dried. All of this bore upon the question as to whether the murder took place in the metal room, which is on the same floor of Frank's office. Excepting near the metal room at the place mentioned where the splotches varied, according to Chief Beavers' testimony, from the size of a quarter to the size of a palm leaf fan, there was no blood whatever. It is to be remarked that a white substance called haskoline used about the factory was found spread over the splotches.

CONLEY'S AFFIDAVITS.

"The defense procured under notice one statement and three affidavits taken by the detectives from Conley and introduced them in evidence.

"The first statement, dated May 18, 1913, gives a minute detail of his actions on the 26th day of April and specifies the saloons he visited and the whisky and beer he bought, and minutely itemized the denomination of the money he had and what he spent for beer, whiskf and pan sausage. This comprehends the whole of affidavit No. 1.

"On May 24, 1913, he made for the detectives an affidavit in which he says on Friday before the Saturday on which the murder was committed, Frank asked him if he could write. This would appear strange, because Frank well knew he could write and had so known for months, but according to Conley's affidavit Frank dictated to him practically the contents of one of the notes found by the body of Mary Phagan. Frank, then, according to Conley's statement, took a brown scratch pad and wrote on that himself, and then gave a box of cigarettes in which was some money and Frank said to him that he had some wealthy relatives in Brooklyn, and 'why should I hang.'

"This would have made Frank guilty of the contemplated murder on Friday which was consummated Saturday and which was so unreasonable, it could not be accepted.

"On May 28, 1913, Conley made for the detectives another affidavit, which he denominates as 'second and last statement.' In that he states that on Saturday morning after leaving home he bought two beers for himself and then went to a saloon and won ninety cents with dice, where he bought two more beers and a half pint of whiskey, some of which he drank, and he met Frank at the corner of Forsyth and Nelson streets, and Frank asked him to wait until he returned.

WARDROBE INCIDENT.

"Conley went over the factory and mentioned various people whom he saw from his place of espionage going up the stairs to Frank's office. Then Frank whistled to him and he came up stairs and Frank was trembling and he and Frank went into the private office when Frank exclaimed that Miss Emma Clark and Corinthia Hall were coming and concealed Conley in the wardrobe. Conley said that he stayed in the wardrobe a pretty good while, for the whiskey and beer had gotten him to sweating. Then Frank asked him if he could write and Frank made him write at his dictation three times and Frank told him he was going to take the note and send it in a letter to his people and recommend Conley to them. Frank said 'Why should I hang?'

"Frank took a cigarette from a box and gave the box to Conley, and when Conley got across the street, he found it had two paper dollars and two silver quarters in it, and Conley said 'Good luck has done struck me!' At the beer saloon he bought one-half pint of whisky and then got a bucket and bought 15 cents worth of beer, 10 cents worth of stove wood and a nickel's worth of pan sausage and gave his old woman $3.50. He did not leave home until about 12 o'clock Sunday. On Tuesday morning Frank came up stairs and told him to be a good boy. On Wednesday Conley washed his shirt at the factory and hung it on the steam pipe to dry, occasioning little rust to get on it. The detectives took the shirt and finding no blood on it returned it.

"On the 29th of May, 1913, Conley made another affidavit, in which he said that Frank told him that he had picked up a girl and let her fall and Conley hollowed to him that the girl was dead, and told him to go to the cotton bag and get a piece of cloth, and he got a big wide piece of cloth and took her on his right shoulder. When she got too heavy for him and she slipped off when he got to the dressing room. He called Frank to help and Frank got a key to the elevator and the two carried the body down stairs and Frank told him to take the body back to the saw-dust pile and Conley says he picked the girl up and put her on his shoulder, while Frank went back up the ladder.

"It will be observed that the testimony and the appearance of the girl indicated that she was dragged through the cinders and debris on the floor of the basement, yet Conley says he took her on his shoulder.

"The affidavit further states that Conley took the cloth from around her and took her hat and slipper, which he had picked up upstairs, right where her body was lying and brought them down and untied the cloth and brought them back and 'throwed them on the trash pile' in front of the furnace. This was the time that Conley says Frank made the exclamation about Emma Clarke and Corinthia Hall.

AS TO THE $200.

"Conley states in it that Frank said: 'Here is $200 and Frank handed the money to him.'

"All of the affidavit down to this point is in twpewriting, the original was exhibited to me. At the end of the affidavit in handwriting is written the following: 'While I was looking at the money in my hands Mr. Frank said, let me have that and I will make it all right with you Monday, if I live and nothing happens,' and 'he took the money back and I asked him if that was the way he done, and he said he would give it back Monday.'"

"It will be noticed that the first question which would arise would be, what became of the $200? This could not be accounted for. Therefore, when that query presumably was propounded to Conley, the only explanation was that Frank demanded it back.

"The detectives had Conley for two or three hours on May 18 trying to obtain a confession, and he denied he had seen the girl on the day of the murder. The detectives questioned him closely for three hours on May 25, when he repeated this story. On May 27 they talked to him about five or six hours in Chief Lanford's office.

SCOTT'S TESTIMONY.

Detective Scott, who was introduced by the state, testified regarding Conley's statement and affidavits as follows:

"'We tried to impress him with the fact that Frank would not have written those notes on Friday, that that was not a reasonable story. That it showed premeditation, and that would not do. We pointed out to him why the first statement would not fit. We told him we wanted another statement.'

"'On May 28, Chief Lanford and I grilled him for five or six hours again, endeavoring to make clear several points which were far-fetched in his statement. We pointed out to him that his statement would not do and would not fit, and he then made the statement of May 28, after he had been told that his previous statement showed deliberation and could not be accepted. He told us nothing about Frank making an engagement to stamp and for him to lock the door, and told nothing about Monteen Stover. He did not tell us about seeing Mary Phagan. He said he did not see her. He did not say he saw Quinn. Conley was a rather dirty negro when I saw him. He looked pretty good when he testified here.

"'On May 29 we talked with Conley almost all day. We pointed out things in his story that were improbable, and told him he must do better than that. Anything in his story that looked to be out of place we told him would not do. We tried to get him to tell about the little mesh bag. We tried pretty strong. He always denied ever having seen it. He denied knowing anything about the matter down in the basement in the elevator shaft. He never said he went down there himself between the time he came to the factory and went to Montag's. He never said anything about Mr. Frank having hit her, or having hit her too hard, or about tip-toes from the metal department. He said there was no thought of burning the body.

"On May 18 we undertook in Chief Lanford's office to convince him he could write, and we understood he said he could not write and we knew he could. We convinced him that we knew he could write and then he wrote:

"In his evidence before the jury in the redirect examination, Conley thought it necessary to account for the mesh bag, and for the first time said that 'Mary Phagan's mesh bag was lying on Mr. Frank's desk and Mr. Frank put it in the safe.' This is the first mention of the mesh bag.

FIRST OF PERVERSION.

"The first suggestion that was made of Frank being a pervert was in Conley's testimony. On the stand, he declared Frank said 'he was not built like other men.'

"There is no proof in the record of Frank being a pervert. The situation in which Conley places him, and upon Conley's testimony must that charge rest, does not prove the charge of perversion if Conley's testimony be true.

"On argument before me, I asked what motive Conley would have to make such a suggestion had the only reason given was that some one may have made him the suggestion. . . . . .

"Conley in his evidence shows himself amendable to suggestion. He says, 'If you tell a story, you know you have got to change it. A lie won't work and you know you have got to tell the whole truth.'

"Conley in explaining why his affidavits varied said: 'The reason why I told that story was I do not want them to know that these other people passed by me for they might accuse me. I do not want people to think that I was the one that done the murder.'

AUTHOR OF THE NOTES.

"Conley admits he wrote the notes found by the body of Mary Phagan. Did Frank dictate them? Conley swears he did. The state says that the use of the word 'did' instead of 'done' indicates a white man's dictation. Conley admits the spelling was his. The words are repeated and are simple, which characterizes Conley's letters. In Conley's testimony you will find frequently that he uses the word 'did' and according to calculation submitted to me, he used the word 'did' over fifty times during the trial.

"While Conley was in jail charged with being an accessory, there was also incarcerated in the jail, a woman named Annie Maude Carter, whom Conley had met at the court house. She did work in the jail and formed the acquaintance of Conley, who wrote to her many lengthy letters. These letters are the most obscene and lecherous I have ever read. In these letters the word 'did' is frequently employed. It will be observed that in Conley's testimony he uses the word 'negro,' and in the Annie Maude Carter notes he says, 'I have a negro watching you.'

NOT BEFORE JURY.

"The Annie Maude Carter notes, which were powerful evidence in behalf of the defendant, and which tended strongly to show that Conley was the real author of the murder notes WERE NOT BEFORE THE JURY.

"The word 'like' is used in the Mary Phagan notes, and one will find it frequently employed in Conley's testimony. The word 'play' in the Mary Phagan notes, with an obscene significance is similarly employed in the Annie Maude Carter notes. The same is true as to the words 'lay' and 'love.'

"In Conley's testimony he uses the words 'make * * *' just as they are used in the Mary Phagan notes.

"In Conley's testimony he uses the word 'hisself' constantly.

"It is urged by the lawyers for the defense that Conley's characteristic was to use double adjectives.

"In the Mary Phagan notes he said 'long tall negro, black,' 'long slim, tall negro.'

"In his testimony Conley used expressions of this sore: 'He was a tall, slim build, heavy man.' 'A good, long, wide piece of cord in his hands.'

"Conley says that he wrote four notes, although only two were found. These notes have in them 128 words, and Conley swears he wrote them in two and one-half minutes. Detective Scott swears he dictated eight words to Conley and it took him about six minutes to write them.

"The statement is made by Frank, and that statement is consistent with the evidence in the record, that the information that Conley could write came from Frank when he was informed that Conley claimed he could not write. Frank says he did not disclose this before, because he was not aware Conley had been at the factory on the 26th day of April, and therefore the materiallity of whether Conley could write any more than any other negro employe had not been suggested to him. Frank says that he gave the information that Conley had signed receipts with certain jewelers, with whom Conley had dealings.

WHERE NOTES WERE WRITTEN?

"At the time of the trial, it was not observed that the death note written on brown paper was an order blank, with the date line, 'Atlanta, Ga.,. . . . . ., 190. .' Subsequently the paper was put under a magnifying glass and in blue pencil, it was found that one Becker's name was written there. He had been employed at the factory on the fourth floor. Investigation was made and Becker testied that he worked for the pencil factory from 1908 until 1912, and the order blank was No. 1018. During that entire time, he signed orders for goods and supplies. The brown paper on which the death note was written bears his signature, and at the time he left Atlanta in 1912, the entire supply of blanks containing the figures 190—, had been exhausted, and the blanks containing the figures '191—' had already been put in use. Becker makes affidavit that before leaving Atlanta, he personally packed up all of the duplicate orders which had been filled and performed their functions, and sent them down to the basement to be burned. Whether the order was carried out, he did not know.

"In reply to this, the state introduced on the extraordinary motion, the testimony of Philip Chambers, who swears that unused order blanks entitled 'Atlanta, Ga. . . . . . ., 191. .,' were in the office next to Frank's office and that he had been in the basement of the factory and found no books or papers left down there for any length of time, but same were always burned up.

"This evidence was never passed upon by the jury and developed since the trial. It was strongly corroborative of the theory of the defense that the death notes were written, not in Frank's office, but in the basement, and especially in view of the evidence of Police Sergeant Dobbs, who visited the scene of the crime on Sunday morning, as follows:

"'This scratch pad was also lying on the ground close to the body. The scratch pad was lying near the notes. They were all right close together. There was a pile of trash near the boiler where this hat was found, and paper and pencils were down there too.'

"Police Officer Anderson testified:

"'There are plenty of pencils and trash in the basement.'

"Darley testified: I have seen all kinds of paper down in the basement. The paper that note is written on is a blank order pad. That kind of paper is likely to be found all over the building for this reason, they write an order and sometimes fail to get a carbon under it, and at other times, they change the order and it gets into the trash. That kind of pad is used all over the factory.

"Over the boiler is a gas jet.

"Another feature which was not known at trial and which was not presented to the jury, but came up by extraordinary motion, was regarding the hair alleged to have been found by Barrett on the lathe. The evidence on the trial of some of the witnesses was that the hair looked like that of Mary Phagan. It was not brought out at the trial that Dr. Harris had examined the hair under a microscope and by taking sections of it and comparing it with Mary Phagan's hair, although he said he could not be certain of it.

"This, however, would have been the highest and best evidence.

"The evidence as to the probability of the blank on which the death note was written being in the basement, and the evidence as to the hair, would have tended to show that the murder was not committed on the floor on which Frank's office was located.

THE TIME QUESTION.

"The state contended that Mary Phagan came to the office of Leo M. Frank to get her pay at some time between 12:05 and 12:10 and that Frank had declared that he was in his office the whole time.

"It is true that the coroner's inquest, held on Thursday after the murder, (Page 3,641) he said he might have gone back to the toilet, but not remember it. However, in some of his testimony, Frank said he had remained the whole time in his office. Monteen Stover swears that she came into Frank's office at 12:05 and remained until 12:10, and did not see Frank or anybody. She is unimpeached, and the only way to reconcile her evidence would be that she entered Frank's office, as she states for the first time in her life and did not go into the inner room, where Frank claimed to have been at work. If Frank were at work at his desk, he could not be seen from the outer room. Monteen Stover said she wore tennis shoes and her steps may not have attracted him.

"However, the pertinency of Monteen Stover's testimony is that Mary Phagan had come to get her pay and Frank had gone with her back to the metal room and was in process of killing her while Monteen Stover was in his office, and this was at a time when he had declared he was in his office.

TIME MARY ARRIVED.

"The evidence loses its pertinency, if Mary Phagan had not arrived at the time Monteen Stover came. What is the evidence?

"The evidence uncontradicted discloses that Mary Phagan ate her dinner at 11:30 o'clock, and the evidence of the street car men was that she caught the 11:55 car, which was due at the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets at 12:07 1-2. The distance from this place to the pencil factory is about one-fifth of a mile. It required from four to six minutes to walk to the factory, and especially would the time be enlarged, because of the crowds on the streets on Memorial day.

"While the street car men swear the car was on time, and while George Epps, a witness for the state, who rode with Mary Phagan, swears he left her about 12:07 at the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets, there is some evidence to the effect that the car arrived according to custom, but might have arrived two or three minutes before the schedule time. If so, the distance would have placed Mary Phagan at the pencil factory at some time between 12:05 and 12:10. Monteen Stover looked at the clock and says she entered at 12:05. A suggestion is made that the time clocks, which were punched by the employes, might have been fast. This proposition was met by W. W. Rogers, who accompanied the detectives to the scene of the murder on Sunday morning, and who testified (page 200, 'I know that both clocks were running, and I noticed both of them had the exact time.) Therefore Monteen Stover must have arrived before Mary Phagan, and while Monteen Stover was in the room, it hardly seems possible under the evidence, that Mary Phagan was at that time being murdered.

"Lemmie Quinn testifies that he reached Frank's office about 12:20 and saw Frank. At 12:30 Mrs. J. A. White called to see her husband at the factory, where he was working on the fourth floor, and left again before 1 o'clock.

"At 12:30, according to Denham, Frank came up to the fourth floor and said that he wanted to get out. The evidence for the defense tends to show that the time taken for moving the body, according to Conley's description, was so long that it could not have fitted the specific times at which visitors saw Frank. It will be seen that when Mrs. White came up at 12:30, the doors below were unlocked.

BACK DOOR FEATURE.

"Another feature of the evidence is that the back door in the basement was the former means of egress for Conley, when he desired to escape his creditors among the employes. On Sunday morning, April 27, the staple of this door had been drawn. Detective Starnes found on the door the marks of what he thought were bloody finger prints, and he chipped off two pieces from the door, which looked like 'bloody finger prints.' The evidence does not disclose further investigation as to whether it was blood or not.

"The motive of this murder may be either robbery, or robbery and assault, or assault.

"There is no suggestion that the motive of Frank would be robbery. The mesh bag was in Mary Phagan's hands and was described by Conley, in his redirect examination, at the trial for the first time. The size of the mesh bag, I cannot tell, butsince a bloody handkerchief of Mary Phagan's was found by her side, it was urged before me by counsel for the defense, that ladies usually carried their handkerchiefs in their mesh bags.

"If the motive was assault, either by natural or perverted means, the physician's evidence, who made the examination, does not disclose its accomplishment. Perversion by none of the suggested means could have occasioned the flow of blood. The doctors testified that excitement might have occasioned it under certain conditions. Under the evidence, which is not set forth in detail, there is every probability that the virtue of Mary Phagan was not violated on the 26th day of April. Her mesh bag was lost, and there can be do doubt of this. The evidence shows that Conley was as depraved and lecherous a negro as ever lived in Georgia. He lay in watch and described the clothes and stockings of the women who went to the factory.

"His story necessarily bears the construction that Frank had an engagement with Mary Phagan, which no evidence in the case would justify. If Frank had engaged Conley to watch for him, it could only have been for Mary Phagan, since he made no improper suggestion to any other female on that day, and it was undisputed that many did come up prior to 12 o'clock and whom could Frank have been expecting except Mary Phagan under Conley's story. This view cannot be entertained except as an unjustifiable reflection on the young girl.

"Why the negro wrote the notes is a matter open to conjecture. He had been drinking heavily that morning, and it is possible that he undertook to describe the other negro in the building so that it would avert suspicions.

"It may be possible that his version is correct.

"The testimony discloses that he was in the habit of allowing men to go into the basement for immoral purposes for a consideration, and when Mary Phagan passed by him close to the hatchway leading into the basement and in the gloom and darkness of the entrance, he may have attacked her. What is the truth we may never know.

JURY'S VERDICT.

"The jury which heard the evidence and saw the witnesses found the defendant, Leo M. Frank, guilty of murder. They are the ones, under the laws, who are chosen to weigh evidence and to determine its probable value. They may consider the demeanor of the witnesses upon the stand and in the exercise of common sense will arrive with wonderful accuracy at the truth of the contest.

"Under our law, the only authority who can review the merits of the case and question the justice of a verdict which has any evidence to support it, is the trial judge. The supreme court is limited by the constitution to the correction of errors of law. The supreme court found in the trial no error of law and determined as a matter of law, and corectly in my judgment, that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

"But under our judicial system, the trial judge is called upon to exercise his wise discretion, and he cannot permit a verdict to stand which he believes to be unjust. A suggestion in the order over-ruling a motion for a new trial, that the judge was not satisfied with the verdict, would demand a reversal by the supreme court.

"In this connection Judge Roan declared orally from the bench that he was not certain of the defendant's guilt—that with all the thought he had put on this case, he was not thoroughly convinced whether Frank was guilty, or innocent—but that he did not have to be convinced—that the jury was convinced and that there was no room to doubt that—that he felt it his duty to order that the motion for a new trial be overruled.

"This statement was not embodied in the order overruling the motion for a new trial.

"Under our statute, in cases of conviction of murder on circumstantial evidence, it is within the discretion of the trial judge to sentence the defendant to life imprisonment (Code, section 63).

"The conviction of Frank was on circumstantial evidence, as the solicitor general admits in his written argument.

ROAN MISCONSTRUED POWER.

"Judge Roan, however, misconstrued his power, as evidenced by the following charge to the jury in the case of the state against Frank:

"'If you believe beyond a reasonable doubt from the evidence in this case that this defendant is guilty of murder, then you would be authorized in that event to say, "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty." Should you go further, gentlemen, and say nothing else in your verdict, the court would have to sentence the defendant to the extreme penalty of murder, to-wit: "To be hanged by the neck until he is dead."'

"Surely, if Judge Roan entertained the extreme doubt indicated by his statement and had remembered the power granted him by the codee, he would have sentenceed the defendant to life imprisonment.

"In a letter written to counsel he says, 'I shall ask the prison commission to recommend to the governor to commute Frank's sentence to life imprisonment * * * It is possible that I showed undue deference to the jury in this case, when I allowed the verdict to stand. They said by their verdict that they had found the truth. I was in a state of uncertainty, and so expressed myself * * * After many months of continued deliberation, I am still uncertain of Frank's guilt. This state of uncertainty is largely due by the character of the Conley testimony, by which the verdict was largely reached.

"'Therefore, I consider this a case in which the chief magistrate of the state should exert every effort in ascertaining the truth. The execution of any person, whose guilt has not been satisfactorily proven, is too horrible to contemplate. I do not believe that a person should meet with the extreme penalty of the law until the court, jury and governor shall have all been satisfied of that person's guilt. Hence, at the proper time, I shall express and enlarge upon these views. directly to the prison commission and governor.

"'However, if for any cause I am prevented from doing this, you are at liberty to use this letter at the hearing.'

"It will thus be observed that if commutation is granted, the verdict of the jury is not attacked, but the penalty is imposed for murder, which is provided by the state and which the judge, except for his misconception, would have imposed. Without attacking the jury, or any of the courts, I would be carrying out the will of the judge himself in making the penalty that which he would have made it and which he desires it shall be made.

THE HUNTER CASE.

"In the case of Hunter, a white man charged with assassinating two white women in the city of Savannah, who was found guilty and sentenced to be hung, application was made to me for clemency. Hunter was charged, together with a negro, with having committed the offense, and after he was convicted the negro was acquitted. It was brought out by the statement of the negro that another negro, who was half-witted, committed the crime, but no credence was given to the story, and he was not indicted.

"The judge and solicitor general refused to recommend clemency, but upon a review of the evidence, and because of the facts and at the instance of the leading citizens of Savannah, who were doubtful of the guilt of defendant, I commuted the sentence, in order that there should be no possibility of the execution of an innocent man. This action has met with the entire approbation of the people of Chatham county.

"In the case of John Wright in Fannin county, two men went to the mountain home of a citizen, called him out and shot him and were tramping on his body, when his wife, with a babe in her arms, came out to defend her husband. One of the men struck the babe with his gun and killed it. Wright was tried, found guilty and sentenced to death. Evidence was introduced as to his borrowing a gun. His threats, his escape after the shooting occurred at the time he was an escape from the Fannin county jail under indictment for felony.

"I refused to interfere unless the judge or solicitor would recommend interference, which they declined to do. Finally, when he was on the gallows the solicitor general recommended a reprieve, which I granted, and finally on recommendation of the judge and solicitor general, as expressed in my order, I reluctantly commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. The doubt was suggested as to the identityt of the criminal and as to the credibility of the testimony of prejudiced witnesses. The crime was as heinous as this one and more so.

THREE NEW MATTERS.

"In the Frank case three matters have developed since the trial which did not come before the jury, to-wit: the Carter notes, the testimony of Becker, indicating that the death notes were written in the basement, and the testimony of Dr. Harris, that he was under the impression that the hair on the lathe was not that of Mary Phagan, and thus tending to show that the crime was not committed on the floor of Frank's office.

"While made the subject of an extraordinary motion for a new trial, it is well known that it is almost a practical impossibility to have a verdict set aside by this procedure.

"The evidence might not have chaged the verdict but it might have caused the jury to render a verdict with the recommendation to mercy.

"In any event, the performance of my duty under the constitution is a matter of my conscience. The responsibility rests where the power is reposed. Judge Roan, with that awful sense of responsibility, which probably came over him as he thought of that Judge before whom he would shortly appear, calls to me from another world to request that I do that which he should have done. I can endure misconstruction, abuse and condemnation, but I cannot stand the constant companionship of an accusing conscience, which would remind me in every thought that I, as governor of Georgia, failed to do what I thought to be right. There is a territory 'beyond A REASONABLE DOUBT, and absolute certainty,' for which the law provides in allowing life imprisonment instead of execution. This case has been marked by doubt. The trial judge doubted. Two judges of the supreme court of Georgia doubted. Two judges of the supreme court of the United States doubted. One of the three prison commissioners doubted.

"In my judgment, by granting a commutation in this case, I am sustaining the jury, the judge and the appellate tribunals, and at the same time am discharging that duty which is placed on me by the constitution of the state.

"Acting, therefore, in accordance with what I believe to be my duty under the circumstances of this case, it is "ORDERED: That the sentence in the case of Leo M. Frank is commuted from the death penalty to imprisonment for life.

"This 21st day of June, 1915.

"JOHN M. SLATON, Governor."

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION IS TO MEET AT RICHLAND

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 21.—The semi-annual meeting of the Third Congressional District Medical association will be held in the auditorium at Richland on Wednesday afternoon and evening of June 23.

There will be present some distinguished members from all parts of the state and an interesting program has been arranged. The committee on arrangements is as follows: J. M. Kenyon, M. D., chairman; W. F. McCurley, M. D., C. E. Picket, M. D., W. C. Sims, M. D.

FOUR DRINKS EACH DAY IS SUFFICIENT

If Properly Taken Will Drive Away Half the Common Ills of City People

Naure's most wonderful draught, from a medical standpoint, is a teaspoonful of liquid Vitalitas in a half glass of either hot or cold water; nothing known means more for the elimination of unhealthful bodily conditions.

The man or woman who suffers dyspepsia, or its train of ills, who has rheumatism or nervous disorders, will find quick relief in Vitalitas and should find cure in its continued use. It is estimated that one-third of city people are indisposed all the time and a large per cent of those are sufferers of chronic disorders. They are particularly subject to ailments of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood.

Vitalitas is extracted out of the earth. It is wholly and purely a natural medicine and it contains mineral properties and natural forces upon which health and life depend. Marvelous cures are constantly being reported from the use of Vitalitas. It will do you good.

See the display and sample Vitalitas at Jacobs' Pharmacy, or write there for information.—(Advt.)

RESINOL STOPS SKIN TORMENTS

How This Wonderful Ointment Ends Itching and Heals Skin Eruptions.

The soothing, healing medication in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap penetrates the tiny pores of the skin, clears them of impurities, and stops itching instantly. Resinol positively and speedily heals eczema, rashes, ringworm, and similar eruptions, and clears away disfiguring pimples and blackheads, when other treatments prove almost useless.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which proved so wonderfully successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other doctors all over the country for twenty years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c and $1) and Resinol Soap (25c).

TODAY'S EVENING STORY.

The Mountain

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

SHE flung the last handful of corn to the chickens and stood watching them scramble for it. The morning wind rumpled her hair and blew strands of it into her dark eyes.

"It's growing warmer," she thought. "Summer is coming."

She turned toward the house. As she did so she came face to face with the mountain. She had not seen it before that morning, and it held a new aspect for her. She beheld it without repulsion. Immense at its base, the mountain rose to a summit slightly flattened as if the point had been worn off by constant friction with the sky. It was thickly clad with trees, along which there were so many hemlocks that its appearance was dark even on gay summer days. In winter, rising between a white earth and cloudy sky, it was black as night.

It was directly in front of a small farm house where Laurie lived. Between it and the door yard fence was a dark, deep stretch of the little river, a narrow sere meadow and the road which went to town.

As Laura looked at it, it seemed to tower over her more sternly gigantic than ever. It seemed to say to her—"I am here. Behold me! You can't tear me down or drive me away with your puny strength. I am one of the everlasting hills and I mock you."

"How I hate it," Laurie sighed and ran indoors to her kitchen at the back of the souse, where the mountain could not look into the window. But though she could not see it she felt the mountain's presence dominating the morning.

"I'm afraid of it," she thought. She sat down beside the kitchen table and buried her face on her arm. Upon the shelf above her Will's clock ticked unconcernedly. Its whole affair was time. "Time—goes; time—goes," it said evenly. Gradually Laurie's thoughts began to regulate themselves in accordance with the gentle, monotonous sound. She grew calmer.

"I'm a foolish girl," she thought, "to let the mountain get on my nerves. But I've lived under it three years. I've never gone out of doors or looked out of a front window that I haven't seen it. It's the only thing there is to see. I don't suppose Will notices it at all; he has lived under it all his life. He thinks there is no reason why I shouldn't live under it all my life. He doesn't know that I dream about it and wake up all cold sweat. Nights when I lie awake I wonder how many tons of dynamite it would take to blow it into atoms. I believe it's making me crazy. I believe I am crazy. I must be or I wouldn't act so childish. What's that?"

She flung up her head with a start. The sound she had heard resolved itself into words sung in a loud voice.

"From Widdletown to Waddletown it's fifteen miles—"

"Oh!" said Laurie, with relief. "that's the mail carrier." And she ran out of the house.

He was stopping at their box. The voice ceased and he grinned as he saw Laurie.

"Where's Will?" he asked.

"He's working on the new state road."

"Takes his dinner, then."

"Yes. And it's often late when he gets home."

"Leaves you kinda lonesome. Well, here's a letter for you."

"A letter!" exclaimed Laurie. She took it eagerly, and as the postman drove on down the road she stood reading it. She smiled as she finished. "I never expected she'd write to me again in this living world, she was so mad at me for marrying Will. And now she wants me to come out and see her." She caught her breath with longing. "Oh, I want to go! I want to see the plains country again, just to look and look till my eyes ache from the distance. I want to get away from this." She looked fearfully up at the mountain. "There's a way; there's a way!" her heart beat all that day.

"I'll Never Leave You Again," She Sobbed.

When Will came home at night she gave him a chicken supper. "What do you think, Will? I got a letter from Aunt Martha today. She wants me to make her a visit," she said.

He looked at her earnestly. "Do you want to go?"

"Well, I guesss—you can," he replied. He sighed heavily. "You'll want to stay quite a spell, going that far. All summer, eh?"

She nodded. "I've been here three years, Will. I don't seem as though I could—" she paused.

He pushed away his plate. "Aren't you going to eat any more?" she asked.

"I'm not very hungry tonight—had too full a dinner pail, I guess," he answered smiling.

A week later, when the weather was very bad, Laurie set forth upon her journey. Will took her to the station. At the bend of the road she looked back at the mountain defiantly. "I've cheated you," she said in her heart.

Two days later she came to Aunt Martha's little ranch, set in the midst of a vast rolling prairie without so much as a shadow of a hill in sight. "How funny it looks," she remarked, wonderingly. "Is—isn't there something missing since I went away?"

The grim, brown old ranch woman regarded her curiously. "Why, one of the sheds blew down in the last cyclone," she said, "but 'twan't big enough to notice skurcely."

But it was not the shed. Laurie did not know what it was, yet the feeling of "wantingness," as Aunt Martha would have expressed it, grew upon her daily.

"You was a fool ever to marry that man of yours," Aunt Martha said. "Don't you see now you were? If you'd a stayed with me you'd been a good deal better off. But you can stay now for all that," she added, cunningly. "I'd never pay out no good money going back to him."

"Aunt Martha!" cried Laurie. "You be careful how you talk about Will to me. He's the best man that ever lived, and I love him."

"Do yer?" drawled Aunt Martha. "Well, I'll say once for all I don't believe you. If you'd loved him one atom you'd never come way out here to me and left him. Shows pretty plain how much you love him."

Laurie was silent and unhappy, for she knew that Aunt Martha was speaking the truth. "What must he think of me?" she wondered, miserably.

She came to hate the plains with their eternal emptiness. More than the blown down shed was lacking. Her eyes ached and her heart ached. She could not get along with Aunt Martha. "I can never stay here all summer," she thought.

And so six weeks after her coming she went away. She did not write to Will, because she wanted to surprise him. She reached the Westmore station in the midst of a gray day. The first person she saw was a farmer who lived on the same road with Will and he took her home.

"Didn't make a very long visit," he said. "Will seemed to think you'd stay all summer."

"How's Will?"

"Hearty, but pretty lonesome, I guess. Hello! Here's old Sugarloaf!"

They had come around the bend and there was the mountain. But such a changed mountain, such a friendly, kindly, protecting mountain!

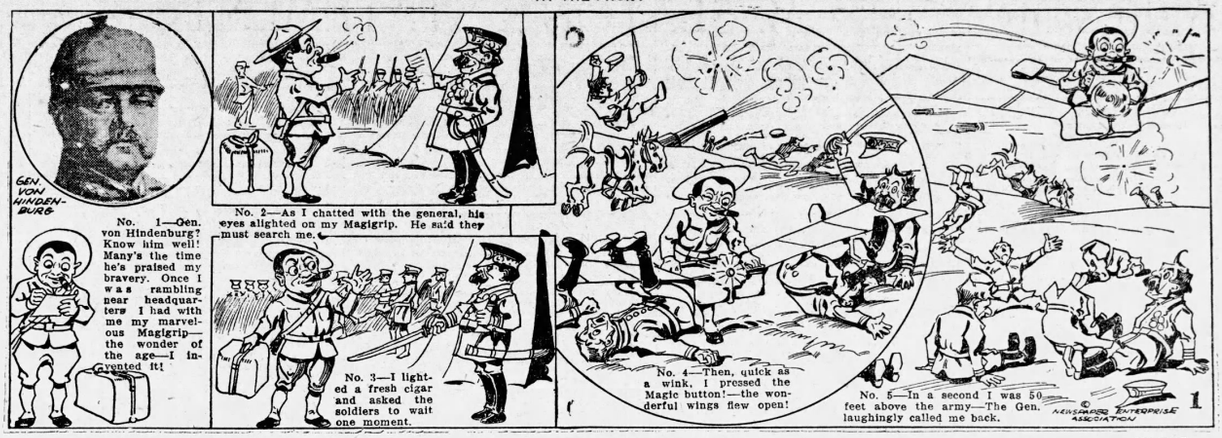

"Oh!" breathed Laurie, "the dear old mountain. It looks like home. Oh, I've missed it so. My eyes have ached for it."

Ten minutes later she was in Will's arms.

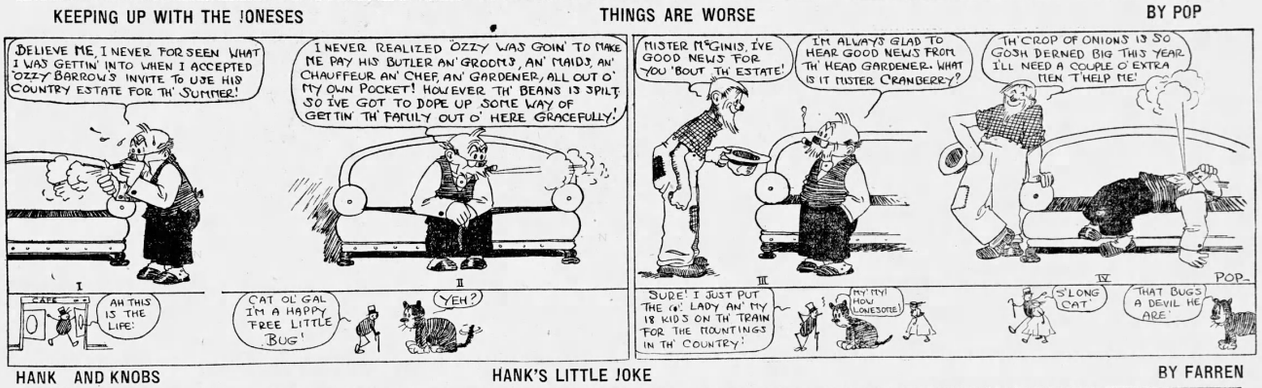

"I'll never leave you again," she sobbed.

Will patted her cheek tremulously. He looked up to the mountain and smiled. And the mountain seemed to smile back.

Gov. Slaton's Courageous Act.

GOVERNOR Slaton has commuted the death sentence of Leo Frank to life imprisonment. This announcement and the reasons for his action as stated in detail by the governor will be read with profound interest not only in Georgia, but throughout the country. In no case of recent years has public interest been so great and public opinion so divided as upon the guilt or innocence of the condemned man.

On the 26th of April, 1913, Mary Phagan, a young girl just budding into womanhood, was foully and cruelly murdered in the very heart of the business district of Atlanta, under circumstances so revolting that the community was dazed and sickened over the details of the horrible tragedy. Circumstances pointed at first to no particular individual. Two negroes were suspected, but one of them was able to establish his innocence very soon and was released. The other was held pending further investigation. This negro made several statements more or less conflicting in detail, but charging the crime to Leo Frank. They were cunningly devised and in a way convincing, especially as there seemed to be no other person against whom the crime could be charged. Each of this negro's statements as they appeared went more into detail than the preceding statement, and the testimony of this drunken, irresponsible and repulsive negro reached its climax when delivered from the witness stand, his examination covering a period of several days. Upon the testimony of this negro, indirectly supported by the testimony of other witnesses, Frank was convicted of the crime of murder.

To some the announcement of the governor's action will carry great disappointment, because there are thousands who have believed from the first that Frank was guilty of the horrible crime of which he was accused. To others, and we believe a vast majority of the people of the State, Governor Slaton's message will carry tidings of satisfaction, because whatever individuals may think as to the guilt or innocence of the condemned man, a vast majority of them recognize in this remarkable case an element of doubt so huge and so staggering that the mind recoils from contemplation of the extreme penalty of the law inflicted upon this unfortunate man.

The views of The Journal have been so often expressed and are so well known that we need not restate them here. Suffice it that shortly after Frank's conviction, and many times since, whenever proper respect for the courts would permit, this paper urged with all the power and earnestness at its command that Frank should have a new trial, and that there was too much doubt about his guilt to justify his execution as a murderer. The judge who presided at the trial entertained grave doubt and so expressed himself at the time, and later in a letter to the governor asked that Frank's sentence be commuted. Two justices of the Supreme Court of Georgia and two justices of the United States Supreme Court and one member of the Georgia Prison Commission, have expressed in the strongest terms their doubts as to his guilt, although the courts were restricted in their consideration of the case to questions of law. Thus, in every tribunal to which this case has been carried, the gravest doubt of Frank's guilt has been expressed.

That the jury reached the conclusion that Frank was guilty is not surprising in view of the circumstances and conditions that surrounded the trial. They would have been superhuman if they had been able to resist the intense feeling that permeated the atmosphere of the court house during their deliberations. Probably no human court and no jury composed of mortal men could have reached a different verdict under the circumstances of this case. The fact that others more remote from the scene of trial, and with every opportunity for weighing the testimony impartially, with equal honesty and earnestness, were convinced that Frank was not the perpetrator of the crime is in no sense a reflection upon the honesty and ability of the jury. It merely shows how great and reasonable is the doubt which under the law must be overcome before the accused can be legally punished. It was this doubt which The Journal proclaimed so earnestly in its appeal for a new trial. It was the same doubt that gave Judge Roan so much trouble and caused him to give expression to his feelings when he overruled the motion for a new trial. It was the same doubt that was later expressed by justices of the Supreme Court of Georgia and by justices of the United States Supreme Court, and by one of the Prison Commission of Georgia. It is this same irresistible doubt that the trained minds of the bench and bar of this and other states recognize with practical unanimity, and that is now recognized also by a vast majority of the people of Georgia. Finally it is this irresistible and irrepressible doubt, huge as a mountain and unyielding as the moral law, that Governor Slaton has recognized, and under his oath as governor of Georgia, in the conscientious discharge of his duty, has commuted the sentence from death to life imprisonment. No fair, open-minded person can justly criticise the governor for his action.

The power to commute punishment for crime is conferred upon him by the constitution and laws of the state. The duty to exercise executive clemency either by full pardon or commutation of sentence, when he is convinced that there is grave doubt about the guilt of the accused, is imposed upon him by the law, by his oath of office, and by his own conscience. This duty of the governor, which is also a legal right of the accused, is just as sacred, just as solemn, just as necessary for the protection of society as the right of trial by jury; and the governor who would fail to exercise clemency in the discharge of duty, either through fear of condemnation or with the hope of political advantage, would be unworthy of the high office of chief executive and under his oath would himself commit a criminal act.

Governor Slaton has studied the record and weighed the evidence fairly and intelligently, and after doing so has reached the definite conclusion that it is impossible for him or any other living man to say with certainty and beyond a reasonable doubt that Leo Frank was the murderer of Mary Phagan, or that he was in any way connected with that horrible crime. That fearful doubt confronts him just as it does every one who studies the record and earnestly seeks the truth.

Under these conditions it was the duty of the governor to commute the sentence. In doing so he has risen to the highest appreciation of his obligation to society in circumstances most distressing, and has discharged that obligation without fear, favor or affection.

The Journal holds no brief for Governor Slaton, neither has it the slightest interest in Leo Frank. Our duty, like that of the governor, is to the public and to society. We have said from the first, if he is guilty he should be hanged. If he is innocent, he should be set free. If there is grave doubt about his guilt, notwithstanding the verdict of the jury, the sentence should be commuted to life imprisonment. This is evidently the view of the governor and The Journal takes this occasion to commend his action as a brave, manly, and conscientious discharge of duty.

The governor has shown wisdom and courage in his performance of an act of simple justice, and time will vindicate his moderation.

The combination on the Dardanelles lock seems to be hard for the English to find.

Greece and the other wavering countries are probably waiting on the fate of Lemberg.

Italy's Swift Strikes.

The Italians are proving themselves the swiftest fighters in the field. While the campaign in Flanders and France moves by the tedious inches of trench warfare and in Galicia with an almost monotonous round of sortie and retreat, along the Adriatic it sweeps forward with a succession of victories for the soldiers of King Emmanuel.

This is due partly, of course, to the feeble resistance of the Austrians, who are massing all their available strength against Russia. But the advance of the invaders is none the less significant. They are now within sight of Trieste, Austria's principal seaport. Nearly a week ago they captured Monfalcone, which commands the light and water supply of Trieste and also an important railway junction. That the latter city is strongly garrisoned and will offer stout resistance is not to be doubted. But the advantages which the Italians already have won will stand them in good service, should anything like a prolonged siege become necessary.

Rome dispatches assert that the invasion has resulted thus far in the occupation of more than twice as much territory as was offered by Austria as the price of Italy's neutrality. Whether this ground will be held, remains to be seen. The Teutons undoubtedly will throw reinforcements into the southern campaign if they achieve their promised victory in Galicia. For the present, however, the Italians seem to have matters largely their own way.

It was expected that Italy's entrance into the war would be of distinct military value to the Allies and also would hasten a decision among the wavering Balkan States. These hopes are not yet fulfilled, but they are growing clearer. The invasion of Austria from the southwest brings a new problem to the Teutonic forces; and in Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria the war spirit is apparently near an outburst.

Europe is also at work on the greatest pension system ever devised.

The kaiser says he can have peace whenever he wants it, but apparently he doesn't want it at this stage.

Europe at least will be spared the annoyance of having to solve the problem of where to spend the summer vacation.

Prayer an Aid to Health.

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Psychology and Parenthood," Etc.

Friend, here is something for you to remember:

If you are in poor health, your chances for recovery will be much increased if you can sincerely pray to God for help.

I say this not merely as a matter of religious belief. I say it in the light of knowledge gained by scientific investigation and observation.

Psychologists and physicians are coming more and more into agreement with those religious leaders who long ago proclaimed the healing power of prayer.

More and more they are indorsing the view set forth by their eminent fellow-worker, the late William James, in these striking words:

"If any medical fact can be considered soundly established, it is that prayer often contributes to restoration to health, and should be encouraged as a therapeutic measure."

Some among the foremost of present-day physicians are indeed encouraging it as a therapeutic measure. Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of the Harvard Medical school, is one of these. Dr. Thomas Hyslop, the eminent English specialist, is another.

"Any man who prays sincerely," says Dr. Cabot, "will thereby open to himself sources of power which otherwise he might never be able to draw upon."

And Dr. Hyslop says:

"I know of nothing so well calculated as prayer to pacify the mind and nerves, and to favor the proper mental attitude in time of illness."

In fact, apart altogether from any extraneous aid which prayer may bring to the sick, it is direct helpfulness to them through its soothing influence on their minds. It is the more helpful in proportion as they pray with a firm belief that their prayers will be answered.

By so praying they produce in themselves a pleasurable emotional state, which contributes directly to recovery by easing the strain of worry, anxiety, and self-centredness incidental to illness.

Bear well in mind that every organ of the body functions more smoothly and effectively under the influence of pleasurable emotions, and is retarded by unpleasant ones, such as envy, dread, uneasiness.

The suppression of these may be, and often is, absolutely imperative for a restoration to perfect health. And if they are suppressed, recovery often ensues even when the physical conditions have been such as to make a favorable outcome unlikely.

Hence the value of prayer, when backed by a confident expectation that prayer will be answered.

Confident expectation—that is, faith—there should always be, to insure the health-bringing efficacy of prayer.

This does not mean, of course, that prayer alone will always, or usually, suffice to cure disease. As some one has well said, God cures by many means: by water, by air, by sun, by drugs, by the surgeon's knife.

But whichever of these is indicated as good to be employed in any particular case, prayer can always be helpfully utilized as a healing adjunct.

"The Secret of the Swiss."

There is no Swiss race. There is no Swiss language. The people of Switzerland are German, French or Italian in race and language. But in patriotism they are all Swiss.

Of the twenty-two cantons fifteen are German, five are French and two are Italian. Incidentally it may be mentioned that twelve of the cantons are strongly Protestant and ten strongly Catholic. Yet there is absolute national unity. Switzerland stands solidly and harmoniously for Switzerland. The German Swiss of Schaffhausen are not for Germany; the French Swiss of Geneva are not for France; the Italian Swiss of Ticino are not for Italy; and this in spite of the fact that these outlying cantons are almost surrounded by Germany, France and Italy, respectively. Racial ties and ties of language may be strong, but the ties of patriotism are much stronger.

In some respects the status of the United States is similar to that of Switzerland. There is no United States race; no United States language. Many United States citizens are of German or English or Italian birth or immediate ancestry. But they should primarily be for the United States; the interests of the United States should be far more important to them than any sympathetic attachment to the lands of their origin.

The German Swiss, who would resent with equal vigor any aggression by Germany and Austria or by France and Italy, should be a striking example to that section of German Americans who are subordinating their American patriotism to their love for their "fatherland." The solidarity of Switzerland is the secret of its strength. Dissension along radical lines would mean the speedy extinction of the republic. Any attempt by the German Swiss, who are the largest element in the confederation, to express sympathy for Germany at this time would bring disunion and ruin. There is no such attempt, because there is no such inclination. Swiss patriotism is neither hyphenated nor sectional, and in history and romance it has long stood as the highest type of national devotion.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Advertising in China.

Chinese merchants and diplomats have given American business men much pertinent information and advice since the Chinese trade commissioners came to this country a few weeks ago. They have thrown light on methods of selling merchandise in China, in which advertising plays as important a part as it does in this country. We do not understand Chinese manners and customs and we make mistakes that hurt business. American exporters should employ Chinese experts to advise them and keep them from offending the susceptibilities of prospective customers.

In advertising American goods in China the reading matter and illustrations should be prepared by educated Chinese who know the merits of merchandise and have the ability to tell their countrymen the story. An advertisement may be effective in America and Europe and yet be deterimental in China. The secretary of the Chinese commission now in this country illustrates this fact by explaining that the wonderfully effective advertisement of a talking machine in which a dog hears "his master's voice" hurts business in China because the people do not like dogs and the picture is repugnant to their sense of propriety.

Illustrations for advertising purposes, other than bare cuts of the articles should be prepared by Chinese artists because European and American artists cannot or do not depict Chinese persons and scenes in a way that pleases the Chinese. Unconsciously they caricature a Chinaman by exaggerating the slant of his eyes and other characteristics. Address the Chinese in good Chinese is the advice of the men who know and who have come across the Pacific to stimulate trade between the two countries.

Exporters never forget that the Chinese are good business men. Where they have a fair field and no favor, as in the open ports of Hong Kong and Singapore, they monopolize most of the trade through superior tact and ability. Chinese merchants are pushing their way to the front in all parts of the Orient and they hold the ground they win because their sense of honor in business is the highest. By cultivating Chinese trade our exporters will cover the Far East through the Chinese merchants outside of China itself and this outside field contains vast possibilities. Throughout Indo-China and in the Dutch possessions the Chinese are gaining ground. In countries adjacent to China European observers compare this peaceful invasion to a flow of lava which covers everything as it goes. No military invasion can compare with the completeness of the conquest by the Chinese of those parts of the Orient with which they come in close contact, and this movement is more important in its ultimate possibilities than any other racial migration since the day the advance of the Turks was halted at the gates of Vienna. Chinese trade is well worth cultivating because the sun of a new day for China is just rising.—New York Commercial.

VACATION REMEDIES

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

IF YOU should go into the open for a vacation and be bitten by a chigger or a rattlesnake or any of the pests between these extremes, would you know what to do to allay your discomfort or save your life?

If not, it might be well for you to know what the nation's specially provided authorities, who devote their lives to the study of these problems, have to say on the subject. It might give you an opportunity to ingratiate yourself with your fellows or to save them from death.

There is the matter of being bitten by snakes, for instance. Such an event breeds terror and seldom meets with competent treatment. The national museum has a staff of reptile specialists who know all the secrets of snakes. They give very specific instructions as to the correct course of action to pursue when bitten by one.

In the first place, they say, poisonous snakes are so rare, and those that are harmless are so plentiful, that there may be no more danger than if the vacationist were scratched by a briar. There should therefore be little alarm until the venomous nature of the snake is established. Every man should be able to tell a poisonous snake from one that is harmless. Otherwise he may die of unnecessary fright—and the misapplication of whisky.

All poisonous snakes likely to be encountered by an American vacationist have the distinguishing mark of a deep pit between the nostril and the eye. This pit is deeper and more pronounced than the nostril. There is the single American exception of the harlequin snake of Florida. There is a second test that applies even to the harlequin snake. The under side of a snake is made up of ridge-like scales that reach entirely across the body. This is true of all snakes as far back as the break of their bodies where the tail proper begins. From that point on the under side of a non-poisonous snake there is a double row of scales, while on the poisonous snakes the rows remain single.

Whenever a snake bite is received the first point to establish is its poisonous or non-poisonous nature and these two tests may be relied upon to accomplish that end.

Aside from the harlequin snake of Florida there are but three species of poisonous snakes in the United States. These are the rattlesnake, widely distributed, easily identified and most dangerous of them all; the copperhead of eastern mountains and rocky places; and the moccasin of the southern swamps, which extends no further north than southern Ohio and Wilmington, North Carolina.

When it is established that one of these has inflicted a wound, the first action should be to tie a handkerchief, or cord or rope about the Bitten member between the incision and the heart. This should be knotted tight with the object of preventing the blood from carrying the poison into the general system. Then, as quickly as possible, the mouth of the bitten person or a companion should be applied to the wound, which should be vigorously sucked that the poison may be drawn out. This sucking must be done by someone whose mouth is in perfect condition, however. An abrasion or crack of the lip, a broken fever blister, will give the poison another access to the blood. The incisions should be cut that they may be made to bleed freely and the sucking continued. This is the most important thing that can be done.

The popular idea that the administration of large quantities of whisky counteract the snake poison is entirely in error. Such treatment, the experts say, makes death much more probable. Small amounts of whisky to stimulate the heart action are beneficial, but large quantities but throw additional burdens on the heart when life depends upon its efficiency. Whisky has probably killed more snake-bitten people than it has ever saved.

After the preliminary treatment the important thing is to get the wounded person to a doctor, who counteracts the poison by injecting strychnine, a treatment too delicate to be undertaken by the amateur.

If the vacationist wants to prepare in advance against the possibilities of snakebite there are specially manufactured kits that are efficacious. These include a cupping instrument, effective in drawing out the poison, and syringes and antidote to be injected into the wound. There are several antidotes such as permanganate of potash, which, if they reach the snake venom, will counteract it. One of these kits is much easier to carry than a flask of whisky and a hundred times as effective.

One is much more likely to be bitten by a chigger or red bug, however, than by a snake, and the sum total of suffering from the former is probably greater than from the latter. Chiggers may be avoided by sifting sulphur into the garments and especially the shoes and stockings when one is going blackberrying or upon any expedition where exposure is likely. Vaseline will serve the same purpose if rubbed on in advance, but is more uncomfortable.

Returning from an expedition where exposure to chiggers has been probable, a wise precaution is to take a hot bath or a bath in very salty or very soapy water. This is an almost certain guarantee against infection. But if the chiggers actually develop to the stage of irritation they may almost certainly be killed by the application of ammonia. A very strong solution of cooking soda is effective. Temporary relief may be gained from applications of cold cream, camphor or essence of peppermint.

When the vacationist goes into the open, merely upon a picnic or to establish a permanent camp, he is pretty sure to find himself ambushed by colonies of the ant tribe. No sooner has a lunch basket been placed on the ground than it will be entered by an ant scout and reconnoitered. If your provisioning is to his taste he has a way of his own of wigwagging for reinforcements and almost immediately a whole army is busy in your commissariat.

The ant nuisance is particularly great where a camp is being established. The lines of march of the foragers may be plainly followed and their nests or holes discovered. Scalding water or coal oil may often be applied with good results. A more effective way of actually exterminating all the ants in a nest is to pour bisulphide of carbon into their holes and then stop up the opening by tramping dirt into it. The fumes spread through all the underground passages and kill the entire colony.

It may often happen that the nests may not be discovered or are inaccessible. Under these circumstances the raiders must be met in the open. It may be necessary to place all provisions on a table and set each leg of the table in a tin can in which water is poured. In this way is a moat established about the provision citadel.

If sponges are moistened in sweetened water and left about, they will attract great numbers of ants and may be picked up from time to time and dipped into boiling water, thus aiding in the extermination of the pest. A brand-new method of campaign has just been devised by the government bureau of entomology. It consists of cane syrup and water into which has been introduced less than 1 per cent of sodium arsenate. Tiny bits of sponge are saturated with this substance. The ants pick these up, fling them debonairly over their shoulders and carry them proudly to their families and their queens. These eat and die. So may the campaign be carried into the very trenches of the enemy.

The mosquito nuisance is one hard to avoid. The government experts state that relief may be temporarily gained by applications of spirits of camphor or pennyroyal, but the odor of these substances will not last all night. A mixture of oil of citronella, spirits of camphor and oil of cedar is more enduring. Another good mixture is castor oil, alcohol and oil of lavender. The best of these applied to a towel hung over the head of the bed will not last the night through and will need replenishing before morning.

The safest protection against mosquitoes is a properly constructed netting frame with the right sort of netting to go over it. This netting should have twenty meshes to the inch, although much of that sold is coarser and admits many mosquitoes. Care should be taken to keep the netting mended and to have it long enough to tuck under the mattresses at the sides. To him who travels in a mosquito country it is safer that he should carry his own netting than depend on that locally provided.

But when mosquitoes have been successful in biting their victims he would have relief from the irritation, the simplest and most strongly recommended treatment that has the sanction of the experts is to dip a piece of any kind of soap into water and rub it on the bite. Ammonia, alcohol and glycerine are likewise vouched for.

In New England there is a brand-new irritant of the vacationist. The gypsy moth, accidentally introduced from abroad, has been of late years creating great havoc among the trees of that section. This moth develops through a caterpillar stage and this caterpillar is covered with tiny spines. In infected regions these spines get upon vacationists and produce a very irritating rash. Dr. Howard, of the bureau of entomology, has attempted to meet this new situation and has developed a remedy. His lotion consists of eight ounces of lime water, ten grains of menthol, two drams of zinc oxide and fifteen drops of carbolic acid.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

"Shoestring's untied, ma'am," a small boy called out to the stout woman who moved majestically up the street. "I'll tie it for you."

Even a haughtier woman would have found it difficult to treat with disdan so kind an offer, and she drew back her skirt in acceptance of it.

The little boy pulled the strings tight and smiled up at her. "My mother's fat, too," he explained.—Harper's Magazine.

It is often literally true that "the weak things of the world" are able to "confound the things that are mighty." Not long ago a member of parliament was caught napping by his little granddaughter, who is the delight of her parents and the idol of her grandfather. She came before him, her face wreathed in smiles, and said:

"Grandpa, I saw something running across the kitchen floor this morning without any legs. What do you think it was?"

He studied for a while, but finally was obliged to give it up. "What was it?" he asked.

"Water," answered the little lady, triumphantly.

Parson Wilder, who had a small church in a little western town, was about to go away for a two weeks' vacation. On Sunday before he started he announced from the pulpit:

"The preacher for next Sunday will be Mr. Judson, and the one for the Sunday following you will find hanging up behind the door on the other side of the vestry."—Harper's Magazine.

Mrs. Davenport gave her two children some fruit one afternoon. Handing it to Joseph, she bade him let the little sister have the first choice.

Shortly after she called him, and said:

"Joseph, I noticed that your little sister took a very small apple. Did you let her have her choice, as I told you to?"

"Yes, mother," replied the boy. "I told her she could have the little one or none at all, and she chose the little one."—Harper's Bazaar.

A certain war correspondent hated the "faker."

Dining with a faking writer one evening in New York, he said:

"So, Bill, now that faking has gone out of fashion, you claim that you never faked, eh? Well, you remind me there of Uncle Peleg.

"'I'm ninety-one years old,' said Uncle Peleg, solemnly, in the general store, 'and I don't remember ever to have told a lie.'

"'Well, of course, uncle,' said a young farm hand, 'you can't expect to have a very reliable memory at your age.'"

A Scottish minister was one day talking to one of his parishioners, who ventured the opinion that ministers ought to be better paid.

"I am glad to hear you say that," said the minister. "I'm pleased that you think so much of the clergy. And so you think we should have larger pay?"

"Aye," said the old man; "then we'd get a better class o' men."

The Searchlight.

The reclamation service of the United States has undertaken a new scheme for the development of its forests. It is planting the sand hill country of Kansas and Nebraska with seedling trees, and caring for them in such a manner that they bid fair to produce excellent forest growths within a few years.

The sand hill region of Nebraska covers nearly 20,000 square miles, and is practically desert country of no value to any one, and a great hindrance to travel. A large nursery has been established by the service at Halsey, Neb., along the Middle Loup river. Here are grown thousands of seedlings from jack and yellow pine, which are to be transplanted into the sand regions.

A camp, including fifty men and nearly as many horses, is established in the region selected for planting, and they are able to plant at least a thousand acres during this spring and summer. The seedlings are planted in long furrows, and around each tract a strip of land about ten furrows wide is plowed. A back fire is started from this strip, in order that the little trees may be protected from the prairie fires which are likely to sweep over this country each year. The work was begun about ten years ago, and great tracks of green hills are already seen in place of what was formerly shifting sand. But only about 10 per cent of the first plantings lived. Improved planting methods and better grade seedlings have increased the proportion that survives to at least 85 per cent.

ADVANCE GUARD OF STATE LEGISLATURE IS ARRIVING

Session of 1915 Will Be Opened Wednesday Morning at 10 o'Clock

The advance guard of the Georgia legislature is in Atlanta and others are coming on every train. The lobby of the Kimball house is beginning to seethe again with political discussion, while flaming posters hung on the railing of the court proclaim headquarters for this and that candidate and this and that project.

Senator Ogden Persons, of Forsyth, candidate for president of the senate, has opened headquarters in rooms 206 and 208 of the Kimball house and is receiving the senators with the glad hand as they arrive. Mr. Persons has no opposition so far as he can learn.

Representative W. H. Burwell, of Hancock county, candidate for speaker of the house, has opened headquarters in rooms 106, 108 and 110. His opponent in the speakership race, Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter county, has established his campaign headquarters in rooms 113 and 115.

For speaker pro tem. of the house there are also two candidates, Representative D. B. Bullard, of Campbell county, and Representative C. E. Stewart, of Coffee county.

The legislature will convene Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and both the house and senate will organize by the election of officers. Senator Persons will be elected president of the senate, and Senator E. P. Dobbs, of Marietta (Thirty-fifth district), will be elected president pro tem. D. F. McClatchey, for many years reading clerk of the house, will be elected secretary of the senate to succeed the late Charles S. Northen, of Atlanta.

In the house, after a speaker and speaker pro tem. have been elected, John T. Boifeuillet will be re-elected to the position of clerk, which he has held for seventeen years without interruption. Mr. Boifeuillet is in the city greeting friends. For several months he has been in London as chief clerk to the American embassy, which position he accepted with an understanding that he should be allowed to return to Georgia and serve the house of representatives.

There will be no dearth of new county prospects. J. O. White, of Pearson, Ga., has opened headquarters in the Kimball house for proposed new county of Axson, which it is proposed to form from the counties of Coffee and Clinch. The name is the maiden name of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Other proposed new counties are Lanier, out of Clinch and Berrien counties; Cook, out of Berrien county; Milledge, out of Burke, Screven and Jenkins.

Deaths and Funerals

CLARENCE BROWN.

Clarence, four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Brown, died at his home, 3 Wylie street, Sunday afternoon. The funeral was held at the residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and interment was in Sylvester cemetery.

MR. G. M. GREEN.

Mr. G. M. Green, twenty-eight years old, of 51 Houston street, died at a private sanitarium Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Surviving him are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Green. The body was removed to Greenberg-Bond's chapel and will be carried Tuesday to Madison, Ga., for funeral and interment.

MMR. G. W. BROADWELL.

Mr. G. W. Broadwell, seventy-two years old, died at his home in Martin View, Ga., Sunday evening. His wife survives him. The body will be carried to Powder Springs, Ga., Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock for funeral and interment.

EDWARD C. HULL.

Edward C. Hull, sixteen years old, died at his home, 62 Broyles street, Monday morning. Surviving him are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hull; his brother, F. A. Hull, Jr., and his sister, Miss Marie Hull.

MR. MOISE DE LEON.

Mr. Moise De Leon, forty-five years old, died at his home, 111 East North avenue, Monday morning. Surviving him are his wife and three children.

FUNERAL OF MR. ALLEN.

The funeral of Mr. C. E. Allen, who died Saturday, was held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at the Donehoo chapel on C. P. Peters street, and the body was carried to Covington, Ga., for interment.

MRS. GEORGIA V. ROACH.

Mrs. Georgia V. Roach, fifty-seven years old, died at her residence, 330 East Hunter street, Sunday afternoon. Surviving her are her sons, J. M., G. R., W. F., A. D., H. W., B. E. and J. H. Roach; one daughter, Mrs. M. G. Herndon; three brothers and one sister. The funeral will be held at the residence at 5 o'clock Monday evening and the body will be carried to Lebanon, Ga., for funeral and interment.

MRS. IDA H. BROTHERTON.

Mrs. Ida H. Brotherton, of East Point, died at a private sanitarium Monday morning. Surviving her are her husband, H. Brotherton, deputy clerk of the superior court; her son, William Brotherton, one daughter, Miss Emma Clifford Brotherton, and her sister, Mrs. Harry Standard. The funeral will be held at the residence of Mrs. W. H. Brotherton, 125 South Forsyth street, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and interment will be in Oakland.

DANIEL W. ENGLISH.

Daniel W., the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. English, died at their home, 1292 Marietta street, Monday morning. The body was removed to Donehoo's chapel and will be carried to Cedartown, Ga., Tuesday morning for the funeral and interment.

MISS JESSIE KREIS.

Miss Jessie Kreis, forty-one years old, for he past eight years connected with the Keely company, died at her home, 233 Pulliam street, at noon Monday. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Fannie Kreis; one brother, George Kreis, and two sisters, Mrs. F. D. Carlisle and Miss Eva Kreis.

MRS. SARAH C. TURNER.

Mrs. Sarah C. Turner, sixty-four years old, died at her home, 521 Crew street, Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock. Surviving her are her husband, J. C. Turner, two sons, J. A. and C. C. Turner, and four daughters, Mrs. G. W. Woodruff, Mrs. James Hester, Mrs. J. E. Head and Mrs. L. S. Turner.

MRS. ELSIE KINARD.

Mrs. Elsie Kinard, thirty years old, died at the residence, 309 Euclid avenue, Monday morning. Surviving her are her husband, Dr. J. O. Kinard, her father, W. B. Guimarin, and one daughter.

TEUTONS ARE STEADILY ADVANCING UPON THE CAPITAL OF GALICIA

are asking is whether Grand Duke Nicholas can emulate Joffre's tactics of last fall and check the Austro-Germans at the gates of Lemberg. Optimists point out that the grand duke checked them almost at the gates of Warsaw, just as General Joffre stopped the Germans before Paris and Field Marshal Sir John French stopped them before Ypres, Dunkirk and Calais.

It is argued further that even should Lemberg fall, the Russians can drop back to equally formidable positions, utilizing the rivers and swamps, and it is the British contention that they thus could hold out for months, England and France in the meantime sending to their aid men and munitions, if necessary.

Whether Russia has sufficient ammunition to meet the present strain is a question which cannot be answered in England, although the London papers say the shortage is acute. One Sunday paper characterizes the situation in Galicia as "Russia's supreme emergency," and public interest is centered in that theater, notwithstanding the hard fighting in progress along the western front. The sound of guns is audible at Lemberg and possibly this week will see the culmination of one of the most interesting phases of the great war.

Both French and British in the western war zone are on the offensive and heavy artillery engagements, with numerous infantry attacks, have been in progress continuously in the regions of La Bassee, Arras, in Lorraine and the Vosges. As usual, the French and German war offices are at variance as to the results attained. As an instance, Paris says that in the sector to the north of Arras the French in an attack advanced about two-thirds of a mile, while Berlin asserts that the French at this point were repulsed "with sanguinary losses."

Turks Subject Allies to Furious Fire at Dardanelles

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 20.—(Via London, June 21.)—The following statement was issued today at the Turkish war office:

"We shelled the enemy's wireless apparatus Thursday, killing soldiers working there.

"Friday we shelled the enemy's left wing, causing heavy losses and forcing the enemy to insure his position to protect himself against our batteries. New positions also were shelled, silencing the enemy's artillery.

Turkish Sultan Is Ill at Constantinople Palace

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Via London, June 21.—Prof. James Adolf Israel, the widely known German specialist, is at the bedside of Sultan Mehemed, at Constantinople, according to the Tagesblatt. He was commissioned by the Turkish embassy here on June 11 to go to Turkey.

Prof. Israel is the sultan's guest at the Yildiz Kiosk, where he will remain until the end of next week. The nature of the Turkish ruler's ailment has not been disclosed.

London Does Not Believe Russians Are in Flight

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 21.—The announcement that Emperor William has assumed supreme command of the operations in Galicia is interpreted here as an indication of complete German confidence in the final victory of the assault on Lemberg now regarded as so near at hand that the generals who during the last two months have battered their way across the province wish the emperor to participate personally in the expected triumph.

Some of the claims put forward by the Germans and Austrians still are to be substantiated, but there is no question they have won new victories both west and north of the Galician capital and the Austro-German advance still is progressing through the Grodek lines west of Lemberg. It is questioned here that anything so vital as the flight of the Russian army, as indicated by Vienna reports, or a perilous break in the Russian front has occurred.

Some British experts believed the Russians are fighting rear guard actions while withdrawing their armies practically intact. They suggest that either the Russians have no intention of defending Lemberg to the last, or have prepared their main defensive lines on positions not yet reached by the Germanic forces. With less than a score of miles separating the Austro-German lines from Lemberg, these points must soon be elucidated.

French and German accounts of operations in the west show the usual divergencies, but the detailed reports from Paris satisfy the British that the French are making such an advance as will shortly permit more active operations, in the sphere occupied by the British army.

The French advance north of Arras, it is thought here, must have pushed the Germans into a narrowed front which will render some of their masses of troops comparatively ineffective. The gains in Alsace show that the French are drawing close to the area of permanent German fortifications.

The arrival at the bedside of Sultan Mehemed of Prof. James Adolf Israel, the German specialist, indicates that earlier reports that the sultan was suffering from a mild attack of catarrh did not show his real condition. The fact that the sultan was unable to make his customary Friday visit to the mosque last week showed that his illness was not slight, as such an admission is considered justified only by extreme necessity.

French Capture East Spur of Mount Calvary

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 21.—The war office today issued this statement:

"North of Arras we made further progress yesterday toward Souchez, occupying several trenches and drawing near to the northwest side of the village.

"There was an artillery engagement which lasted all night near Dompiere, west of Peronne. An evening attack was stopped short.

"On the heights of the Meuse, in the sector of the Calonne trenches, we maintained all our gains in spite of a violent counter attack.

"In Lorraine, near Reillon, we have followed up our advantages. The entire first line of the enemy had been occupied by us along a front of 1,500 yards. At the end of the day a strong enemy column attempted to counter attack, but was dispersed. French reconnoitering parties have reached the vicinity of Chaseeles, the enemy having abandoned this ground. All the German trenches occupied by us were found full of bodies. We took about twenty prisoners.

"In the vicinity of Mount Bonhomme in the Vosges, we have taken by assault the eastern spur of Mount Calvary, made progress in the neighboring hills, and reached the approaches to the village of Bonhomme.

"We continued to make progress in the valley of the Fecht, and we have gone beyond the cemetery of Metzeral. To the southwest hand to hand fighting continues.

"Here we have gained ground and taken 150 prisoners, among whom are four commissioned officers and eleven under-officers."

PRISON WARDEN'S WIFE FOUND DEAD IN FLAMES

Investigating Theory That Trusted Convict Servant Fired Her Bed

JOLIET, Ill., June 21.—Mrs. Edmund M. Allen, wife of the warden of the Illinois penitentiary, was found dead in her blazing bed and a committee is trying to determine whether she accidentally set herself on fire, or was slain and burned by George Campbell, a negro prisoner, who served the warden's family as personal servant. Mr. Allen was absent on a trip.

A jug of wood alcohol was found in the room after the fire was extinguished, and members of the investigating committee said it was possible some of the fluid had been used in an effort to cremate Mrs. Allen. Campbell told the committee this story:

"Warden Allen left last night. About 6 o'clock this morning Mrs. Allen called me and asked for the morning papers, which I got. Then I placed some ice water by the bed in which she lay and took her pet dog outdoors, as I do every morning. When I returned I saw smoke blazing from the Allen apartments on the third floor. John Simpson and another trusty were trying to fight their way through the smoke in Mrs. Allen's room. We called the prison fire department."

The condition of the body prevented a satisfactory autopsy to determine whether Mrs. Allen had been attacked previously to the fire, but members of the committee said that Campbell probably would be charged with slaying Mrs. Allen.

Mrs. Allen formerly was prima donna of a company presenting "The Merry Widow." Her maiden name was Odette Maizee Bordoux. She was thirty-four years old.

Allen was best known among penologists for his extension of the honor system among convicts. Several hundred of the more than 1,600 prisoners have been at comparative liberty during the last two summers, working on state farms and road building at honor camps.

Baseball games and minstrel shows have been features of prison life and last winter by the arrangement of Mrs. Allen a full company was taken from a Chicago theater to present a popular success before the prisoners.

The honor system will be suspended at the prison, it was said.

Mrs. Allen was a native of New Orleans. She joined a musical comedy company at New Orleans when she was twenty-one and went to New York. In the original cast of the "Merry Widow" company, she was an understudy to Ethel Jackson, who played the title role. Soon after she was given the title role in a road company.

Ten convicts besides Campbell were placed in solitary confinement today in connection with the crime.

MRS. JESSE BOOTH SHOT BY UNKNOWN PERSON

Is Peppered From Head to Foot With Bird Shot

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ADEL, Ga., June 21.—Mrs. Jessa Booth, living near Paxsons Mill, below Adel, was struck with a large number of bird shot last night, fired by unknown parties when she opened the door of her home to ascertain the cause of shooting in the neighborhood. Mrs. Booth was literally peppered with the shot from head to foot and had the shot been larger she would have been killed. It is understood that there is a clue as to the guilty parties and it is said they are believed to be young men in the neighborhood who had taken off some of the mules to ride and were about to be detected. Mrs. Booth's injuries are painful, but not dangerous.

PILLAR OF FIRE RISES IN MIDST OF THE SEA

Terrifying Volcanic Eruption Occurs in Sea South of Japan

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, Japan, June 21.—Reports of a terrifying volcanic eruption in the sea south of Japan two days ago has been brought into Yokohama by incoming steamers. The disturbance is regarded here as a direct cause of an earth shock in central Japan yesterday, the strongest experienced in several years.

The submarine eruption took place at 8:30 a. m. Saturday. Its location is given as about seventy miles southeast of Fatsizio or Hachijo island, 150 miles directly south of Yokohama. A pillar of fire and dense smoke obscured the sun and turned day into night. Huge rocks and quantities of lava rained down into the sea, and the waters are described as becoming "red and boiling." Steamers which observed the disturbances were struck by tidal waves, but escaped injury.

The shock in Japan damaged a number of houses in Tokio, but there were no casualties.

CANADIAN OVERALL PLANT IS BLOWN UP BY BOMB

Company Had Just Completed an Order of 115,000 British Uniforms

WINDSOR, Ont., June 21.—The overall factory of the Peabody company, limited, in Walkerville, a suburb, was partially wrecked by a bomb explosion today. The company is said to have just completed an order of 115,000 British uniforms.

Shortly after the explosion in the factory twenty-seven sticks of dynamite were found under the rear of the Windsor armory, attached to a time fuse which had been set for 3:15 a. m. but had burned out. It is said 200 men slept in the armory last night, and had the dynamite exploded the whole building would have been wrecked.

Horace B. Peabody, head of the overall company expressed belief that the bomb had been placed "by German sympathizers from Detroit."

Police and military authorities are working together on the case. The damage to the factory is estimated from $5,000 to $10,000.

AUTO RURAL ROUTES TO BE STARTED AUGUST 2

Georgia to Have 28 Routes Served by Motors in Future

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Automobile rural mail delivery routes will be established in many parts of the country beginning August 2. It is announced that orders have been signed by Postmaster General Burleson authorizing the operation of 105 machines on that date.

Preparations are being carried forward for installation of the automobile in the rural mail service wherever the roads will permit. Already some carriers are using automobiles on their routes. Under the new plan, routes designated as automobile routes will be longer than the old horse-drawn vehicle routes and the pay will be more.

Of the routes selected to date for automobile mail delivery, 44 are in Oklahoma, 28 in Georgia, 19 in California, 8 in Texas, 8 in Florida, 2 in Pennsylvania and 1 in Louisiana. These aggregate 5,500 miles of post roads and are the first chosen for the inauguration of the new system.

THREE CHAUTAUQUAS IN FULL BLAST IN GEORGIA

Greenville, Hogansville and West Point Now Hearing Lectures and Concerts

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 21.—Three towns in LaGrange's immediate territory will be scenes of gala occasions within the next few days when Greenville, Hogansville and West Point each hold chautauquas.

Greenville opened her session Friday with agricultural day, features of which were addresses by Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, and Dr. Frank B. Vrooman, well-known lecturer.

Hogansville chautauqua will be held June 19, 21 and 22. The first day was educational day, with addresses by county, state and national leaders in the morning and concerts by the Columbia Concert company and lectures by Dr. W. T. S Culp, of Cleveland, in the afternoon and evening.

The chautauqua at West Point will begin June 23, and continue through June 29. The Alkahest Lyceum system, which will furnish the entertainment, announces some unusually attractive features. There will be performances daily in the afternoon and evening.

A COLORADO VACATION DOESN'T COST MUCH --GO THIS SUMMER

With the very low fares in effect daily June 1 to September 30—only $30 for round trip from Chicago—$32 from Memphis—$25 from St. Louis—and the possibility of good board as low as $8 per week, Colorado has proven to be the place of places for a real out-of-doors vacation.

The turquoise sky, constant sunshine, invigorating air, cool nights, wonderful snow-capped mountains, canyons, lakes, streams, the unusual opportunities for outdoor sports, make one wonder how anyone has ever failed to visit Colorado.

If you don't care to go all the way to the Pacific Coast this year, by all means visit Colorado—the nation's playground. The "Rocky Mountain Limited," "Colorado Flyer," "Colorado-California Express" and other fast trains via Rock Island Lines provide the best in railway travel. Automatic block signals—Finest modern all-steel equipment—Superb dining car service.

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

SHE WANTS TO BE A SLAVE

By Edna K. Wooley

IF I were to hear a man's voice over the telephone right now asking me to marry him," said the business woman, "I'd say 'Yes; who is it?'"

"What's gone wrong?" I said. When my friend the business woman talks like that, I'm pretty sure she's up against something.

"It's this economic independence of women," she answered. "I'm for it, of course—when I'm feeling well and hunky-dory. But when I've got a headache and a backache and a stomachache—"

"What," I meekly asked, "is wrong with the economic independence of women?"

"Everything!" she exploded. "Women were made to be taken care of. They were made so that when they don't feel well they can wear any old kind of loose clothes and lie down during the day. They were made to get placid and fat—and forty-five or more. They were made to do their own kind of work in a kind of home privacy, and not to dress up and hustle down town to a public office every day of their lives except Sunday, and use up Sunday for mending their clothes and washing their hair and so on.

"The Lord made women to be mothers and wives—and sometimes old maid aunts that the world positively couldn't do without. He didn't expect any of 'em would turn out bachelor girls, I'll wager! And He didn't expect they'd be pounding typewriters and competing in business with men and filling the factories, to get their bread and butter. He didn't give them the instinct, for economic independence. It's mankind that's educating us to that.

"Everything about a woman, from the curves of her mind to the curves of her body, leans toward economic dependence. She's a hangup good manager in her own natural specialties, when somebody else brings in the coin; but she fights her own nature every time she goes out into the world to dig up the wherewithal for herself.

"When a girl's young and brash and hasn't found herself, she wants to go out into the world and be economically independent. When she gets along toward thirty years of age, she's willing to marry almost anything that earns a steady salary, but by that time she's learned how uncertain salaries are, and she's scared to marry for fear she'll have to go on being economically independent and add to her burden by having somebody else to support.

"Economic independence!" Just let some man come along and guarantee to pay the bills, and I'm his'n."

"You make me think of an actress I knew, who got married and shortly after applied for a divorce," I remarked. "She said she really had nothing particular against her husband. She had simply made a mistake in marrying at all. She said when she married she was all tired out, and what she needed wasn't a husband, but a vacation."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

WHITE HANDS.—Never use very hot water in washing the hands, but cleanse the hands with tepid water. If your hands are red and ugly, try the following: Make a paste of powdered myrrh, 4 ounces; strained honey, 2 ounces; yellow wax, 2 ounces; rose water, 6 ounces. The wax should be melted in a cup and set into a pan of boiling water to prevent setting; myrrh added while liquid is warm, then remove from the heat. After a thorough beating, the honey and rose water is added—the latter very slowly. The last thing, thin the paste a little with glycerine, taking care not to use too much. At night spread this paste upon the hands, draw on some loose gloves and the hands will come out soft and white.

Raisins and currants—in fact, all dried fruits—lose much of their moisture when exposed to the air, becoming dry and hard. It is recommended that these fruits, as well as figs, dates, candied fruit, cocoa and chocolate, be kept in a cool place and away from strong sunlight.

Nuts in the shell demand a cool spot. Shelled nuts are extremely perishable. If exposed directly to the sun, the heat will draw out the oil and the nuts will become rancid. They must be kept almost air-tight.

Olives need coolness, and olive oil must be protected against strong light and heat. Peanut butter should be kept away from the sun. When left on a shelf for some time the oil often separates from the mass of butter. When this occurs the jar should be turned upside down, and the butter then will absorb the oil again.

Pickles should be covered to keep out a tiny insect called the vinegar fly. This fly will deposit its eggs among pickles, causing a noticeable worminess in a few days.

Tea deteriorates in either a heated or a damp place, through evaporation or absorption of moisture; therefore a cool place of even temperature should be selected for the tea caddy.

Spices, having a tendency to weaken with age, should be purchased in small quantities.

Sugar will keep well in a dry place. It absorbs moisture quickly, and when this is dried out the sugar becomes very hard and lumpy—which is inconvenient and troublesome.

SAFETY FIRST

RULE.

Look both ways before you cross the street.

It's better to be safe than sorry.

Cross street only at crossings—the short cut may be a short cut to the hospital.

Drivers of vehicles should be always on the lookout for pedestrains and for children.

Don't try to dodge ahead of a street car—maybe the motorman isn't watching you.

Look out both ways when you step off a street car.

Bumpy, Frumpy and Grumpy Talk It Over

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.
(Copyright, 1915, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Think twice before you do a thing,
And then, why think again.
'Tis only those who think in time
Who are prepared for rain.

OF COURSE, rain hasn't anything to do with this story, but that little line means that those who think before they do things are not nearly so likely to get into trouble as those who don't think and then are surprised by trouble, just as those who never think that it may rain get caught in showers. When Bumpy, Frumpy, and Grumpy found that they could go home if they wanted to, Peter Rabbit offering to show them the way, they didn't decide without thinking. In fact they talked it all over while Peter patiently waited.

"I am ready to go home and the sooner I can get there the better I'll like it," declared Bumpy. "I've had quite enough of the Great World and I don't believe there is anything in it as wonderful and as nice as our old home."

"Pooh! Pooh! Bumpy Possum! That isn't the way you talked when we first started out," grumbled Grumpy. "What do you think about going back home, Frumpy?"

Frumpy scratched the tip of his nose. "Well," said he, "I suppose the really sensible thing to do is to go back home, and before Mr. Rabbit came along I wished I was there. But somehow now that we can go as well as not I don't want to go. If we go all the family will laugh at us for coming back so soon and for seeing so little of the Great World. It will look as if we had been scared and didn't dare stay away any longer. We might try it a little longer in the Great World."

"I'm not going home unless you two do," exclaimed Bumpy.

"We will," declared Grumpy. "Anyway you and I will. Bumpy can go back home if he wants to and tell them that he didn't dare stay with us."

"Oh, I'm not going home unless you two do!" exclaimed Bumpy hurriedly. "I dare do anything that you dare do. If you dare keep on to see the Great World I do, so there. It seems to me that we are foolish, that's all. Granny Fox has proved to us that we don't know as much as we thought we did, and I'm not so sure as I was that we are able to take care of ourselves."

"That's just it," replied Grumpy. "We've found out one of the most important things. We've found out that we cannot believe everything that we are told by strangers and that we don't know as much as we thought we did. That means that we are better able to take care of ourselves than we were before, doesn't it, Mr. Rabbit?"

Peter nodded. "It certainly does," said he. "When little folks learn that they don't know everything they are just ready to begin to learn something."

"Besides," continued Grumpy, "we can't stay at home always. We've got to go out in the Great World some time, and now that we are out we may just as well stay out. That is what Mr. Rabbit did when he was little and ran away from home. I for one am going to stay."

"So am I," declared Frumpy, and, of course, Bumpy said that he was, too.

"Then that settles it," Grumpy said. "Mr. Rabbit, we are ever so much obliged to you for your advice and for your offer to show us the way home, but we've decided to keep on."

Peter chuckled. "I knew you would," he replied. "I was young myself once. Just remember this, to trust no one unless your eyes and your ears and your nose and your common sense tell you that they are to be trusted and you'll come out all right. Watch out for danger when there seems to be no danger near. Now I must be running along. Good luck to you, and never trust old Granny Fox."

With this off scampered Peter, lipperty-lipperty-lip, leaving the three little Possums to continue their way into the Great World.

Advice to June Brides

BY MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK
The Famous Contralto

THERE is another kind of secretiveness that is even more essential than that of keeping your own or your friends' secrets, and that is keeping your husband's secrets and the secrets of your married life.

Up to the day you are married, my dear, your sweetheart honored you above all women and you have accepted his homage as a queen accepts the loyalty of a courtier.

After you have taken the beautiful name of "wife" your husband's honor or is in your keeping.

To no one—not even your mother—should you whisper treason in the way of recounting his slightest fault.

Schumann-Heink

It is a hard fact to learn, but one must remember that perfection is not of man or woman. No matter how well you think you know the man you are going to marry, you will find, when you live with him from day to day, unexpected traits, and he will discover the same in you.

Do not grow into the easy practice of recounting all the little annoyances that come between you and your husband even to your mother, as the retailing of them only makes them seem worse.

Remember, as long as you live with your husband you two are one, and when you discover his shortcomings to some one you discover your own as well.

One of the dearest women I ever knew lived a life of unhappiness because her husband was a drunkard.

Yet, when I, through long years of a most intimate friendship, never heard one word of complaint about him. While there were times when this woman thought her whole life had failed, yet there came a time when, looking back, she knew she had kept her faith and her husband bound to her with hoops of steel, because she had put all curiosity behind her.

Our Column Of Good Recipes

(Pictorial Review.)

Currants or Raisin Gems.

1 cupful flour, 1-2 cupful milk, 1-2 cupful sugar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoonful butter, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 1-8 teaspoonful salt, 1-2 cupful raisins or currants.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the well-beaten egg. Sift in the flour, salt and baking powder, then add the milk. Beat well for five minutes. Mix in the floured raisins or currants. Drop from a tablespoon onto a well-buttered tin and bake in a hot oven.

Sponge Dominoes.

Bake an ordinary sponge cake in a shallow tin. Cut it into small oblong pieces and cover with chocolate icing. When this is cold, ornament with bits of white icing to represent dominoes.

Peppernuts.

1 pound flour, 1 pound sugar, 4 eggs, 3 ounces candied lemon peel, 1 tablespoonful ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoonful cloves, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 1 nutmeg.

First beat the eggs and sugar together. To this add baking powder, spices and sliced lemon peel and beat thoroughly. Add the flour and knead together and roll into small balls and bake in slow oven on buttered tins.

Sour Milk Oatmeal Cakes.

1 cupful white sugar, 1-2 cupful butter, 1 cupful oatmeal, 1 cupful grated cocoanut, 1 cupful chopped raisins, 1 teaspoonful soda, 1 tablespoonfuls sour milk, 2 cupfuls flour.

When you have creamed the butter and sugar, stir soda in the sour milk and add to the mixture. Mix in the raisins and cocoanut and then add gradually the oatmeal and flour. Drop from a teaspoon onto buttered tins. Bake in a quick oven.

Hermits.

2 cupfuls brown sugar, 1 cupful butter, 1-2 cupful milk, 1-3 cupful almonds, 1 cupful raisins, 1 teaspoonful soda, 1-2 teaspoonful cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoonful nutmeg, 1 egg, flour.

Carefully cream the sugar and butter, add the well-beaten egg and the soda dissolved in the milk. To this add enough flour to roll out well. Sift in the cinnamon and nutmeg and stir in the chopped and floured raisins and chopped almonds. Roll, cut in oblongs and bake.

Little Molasses Cakes.

2 scant cupfuls lard, 2 cupfuls molasses, 1 egg, 1 teaspoonful soda, cinnamon, cloves, flour, salt.

Mix the ingredients together with sufficient flour to roll out on a board. Cut in fancy shapes after rolling the dough about 1-4 of an inch thick.

Petits Fours.

You can use, for this, a plain pound or sponge cake, purchased at the bakery if you desire.

Make a nut or chocolate filling, or use a jar of jelly or marmalade, and insert this between thin slices of the cake like a sandwich filling. Cut into oblongs, triangles and squares and ice with a thick layer of boiled icing. This is an excellent way of using cake which is too dry to eat.

Fashions for Americans

By Lillian E. Young

EVERY week brings fresh evidences of the charm that lies in the combination of summer cottons with embroideries, silks, and the amazing variety of materials with which the dressmakers have to work this season. Surely there is no fault to be found with the present trend of fashions.

Each new model is distinctive; the commonplace does not even have to be considered. We have to look back over the past ten seasons to actually realize how different this one is from any other in matters of dress.

For voile, marquisette, or crepe de chine, the design of today's sketch is happily suited, and is in every way appropriate for summer afternoons. Eyelet embroidered voile is used for the blouse, gathered to a cord around the neck and topped by an upstanding collar with scalloped edges. The sleeves are gathered into a deep cuff of plain voile through which several rows of cording are run, then finished with a scalloped wrist ruffle.

A bib of plain voile covers the lower part of the blouse, and has a little cut at the top of the center front with the corners turned back like tiny lapels. The belt shows three rows of cording and a narrow scalloped ruffle below.

Plain voile is used for the underskirt, with two set-on rows of shirring and a scalloped edge. The tunic is cut to form a deep point in back and in front, then finished with rows of cording. A pointed yoke of embroidery is set on above, and is kept the same width as the tunic; that is, it is not smooth-fitting, to which the tunic is gathered, but a part of the tunic itself.

If crepe de chine is used it, too, can be combined with embroidered crepe de chine, or else the blouse and top of the tunic can be of chiffon, embroidered or plain.

The rows of cording are easily fashioned, by running the soft cotton cord through the succession of small tucks in the dress material.

Girdles of black velvet, or of satin in delicate shades of heliotrope, maize or violet give a touch of smartness to almost all summer gowns of wash fabrics.

The Girl's Job

By Jessie Roberts

"DEAR Jessie Roberts: I am young, ambitious and hard-working, and I intend to get ahead. Tell me if you think I am planning too strenuous a year.

"I am a cashier in a restaurant at present, and get enough salary to lay a trifle aside each week. This I am saving to help in my education. My hours are not very long, for this place shuts at 8 p. m., and I do not have to be at my desk till 10 a. m., since we serve no breakfasts. I always eat in the restaurant before leaving. What I want to do is to go to night school and take a business course, including stenography. I also plan to take civil service examinations, and shall study with that view. Do you think that I will run a risk of injuring my health if I follow these plans? I do not mean to leave the city during my two weeks' vacation, but to put that time in in study. I am strong, and only a little nervous at times.

"Yours truly,

I think you are overdoing. I believe in night school when you cannot study except then, but it would be better to stick to one thing, and not try to learn everyhing at once. If you want to enter civil service, find out what would be your best opportunity in that work, and study that. Once you pass the examinations, you can take up study for promotion.

You should not give up your vacation. It is better to take a year longer in getting ready for a better position and to maintain your health. Many young and ambitious women ruin their health irretrievably by too constant and severe a strain on the nervous system, refusing to take the rest they ought to have. Don't make that mistake. You cannot do more than a reasonable amount of brain work without danger, especially in the position you are in of having to sit still practically all day. You should think of your health as one of your important assets in a successful career. Take some exercise each day, a good brisk walk at least, and a vacation that will mean a real rest.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Barons Here to Open Four Game Series With Crackers at Ponce de Leon

Moley's Barons Here for Four Games at Ponce

McDonald Expected Today, but Will Not Appear in Line-Up, Eibel to Play First for Barons--Allen or Perry Against Johnston or Robertson

By Innis Brown

Chubby Carlton Molesworth and his Birmingham Barons will be the attraction at Ponce de Leon this afternoon. The visitors will hook up in the first of a four-game series with the Crackers beginning at 3:45 o'clock. Provided they have recovered from recent indispositions, either Perry or Allen will do the flinging for the home crew, while Robertson or Johnson will likely be Molesworth's pick.

Eddie McDonald, who formerly played with the Barons, and who has lately agreed on terms with the Crackers, is due in the city today, according to plans announced a few days since. However, it has recently developed that Little Rock has some kind of a claim on the former Baron, and until this claim is settled, he will not be used. Just what right the Travelers claim in Eddie is not known, as he was a free agent at the time the Crackers open negotiations with him. However, to avoid any complications that may arise from playing him, he will be kept out of the game until a final settlement of Bob Allen's claim is reached.

The claim which has arisen to keep McDonald out of the line-up has conspired to rob today's game of a rather peculiar situation. Had he been allowed to play, the game would have produced the rather peculiar situation of having a former Baron play his first game against his mates, while a former Cracker was doing likewise. Hack Eibel is expected to appear in a Baron uniform this afternoon.

Hack was given notice by the Crackers several days since, and in his efforts to place him elsewhere, Manager Smith queried the Barons on giving him a berth. Just at present Molesworth's team is badly crippled through sickness and injuries. Charlie Carroll is playing third base, while Edson Hemingway is nursing an attack of mumps, and Jack Wallace has been working at first. However, an injury to Wallace, has put the Barons in a hole, and Eibel has been taken on to plug in at first at least temporarily.

The report sent out from Chicago Saturday to the effect that a move by the Class AA and Class A leagues, five in number, are contemplating a reduction of players' salaries, or else a curtailment of their league seasons, appears to be based on "street information." That is, nobody has as yet been found who admits knowing anything definite about the scheme. Expression from the presidents of the other leagues involved are to the effect that they know nothing definite of such a move though some informal discussion to this effect may have been held. Here in the Southern President R. H. Baugh states that he knows of no definite play to cut down either in salaries, or in the length of the season.

Among the crowd which watched the Crackers and Gulls in the final clash of their recent series Saturday afternoon was Bobby Gilks, former club manager in this league. Bobby is now on the payroll of the Yankees in the capacity of scout. He has just finished a jaunt through the American association, looking over some of the most promising young talent in that league.

True to the traditions, of the eagle-eyed sleuths, Sir Robert declined to tip off his prospect in the game Saturday. He admitted, however, that there were one or two youngsters in the contest on whom he was anxious to get a line. He also stated that there were some four or five others about the circuit, that he expected to take a slant at, before he sought other fields. Gilks has always been sweet on young Benny Karr, who flung a part of the game for the Gulls Saturday. However, Karr's showing in that game must surely have failed to impress.

Whitney Plays At Druid Hills

The calm that follows the storm pervaded local golf courses yesterday, following the close of the big tournament which came to an end at East Lake Saturday afternoon. The day saw what was doubtless the smallest Sunday crowd of the season at East Lake, while play over the others about the circuit was generally lighter than ordinary.

However, there was some excellent golf played. At Druid Hills Nelson Whitney took advantage of the opportunity to play the course. Together with H. G. Seibles, of Birmingham; Lowry Arnold and George Adair, he played eighteen holes there in the forenoon. The former champion expressed a very favorable opinion of the course.

In addition to this match, Charlie Hall, Willie Mann and Stewart Maiden played at Druid Hills in the afternoon. Hall is the professional at the country club course in Birmingham, and plays a great game. In the morning he played at East Lake with the two local professionals, and had a 36 for the second nine of the lake course, and that, too, though he was playing the course for only the second time.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

The race in the National League is beginning to arouse the Bug from the torpor. He is at last beginning to realize that any one of six clubs has a chance—a condition that hasn't existed in over a decade.

The esteemed Dodgers have acquired the knack of playing just well enough to lose—one of the most harassing knacks in the make-up of the peppery pastime.

This is no part of a josh. There are times, for long periods, when a ball club can play well, and yet get beaten day after day. And other times when it can play badly and still win a fair share of its starts.

For it isn't only what you do in baseball; what the other fellow does is at least 50 per cent of it.

THE NEXT LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP.

Freddie Welsh, being more than passing clever and yet bereft of a punch, isn't very far from the end of his reign. Cleverness is a big asset, but it is of no great avail when matched against cleaverness plus the ancient and honorable wallop. There is a good chance that Freddie's finish would arrive at an early date if he cared to take on Charley White for twenty rounds—but it seems that Freddie's cleverness extends to his matchmaking as to his ring ability. As long as he persists in mingling only and exclusively with the components of cheese he will stay where he is until the law of gravity drops him back.

VITAL AFFAIRS

Preparedness is a vital affair, any way you take it. If the Giants had been prepared to win the pennant they would not be in the second division.

Or if the pitchers had been prepared for Ty Cobb he wouldn't be batting over .400. This should be a tip-off to the nation in regard to possible war.

THE WILLARD STATUS

Dear Sir: I have seen it stated that Jess Willard is the greatest heavyweight that ever lived. It is hard to believe this is possible. How about it? FIGHT FAN.

Each champion in turn is always the greatest, to a number, that ever lived. Concerning Mr. Willard we would say that he is the greatest champion in history that ever knocked out Jack Johnson in Cuba on an April afternoon. Beyond this we have no yearning to go until Willard's next start.

Back in April the National League pennant race was scheduled between the Braves and Giants. But some one must have forgotten to tip off Cubs and Phillies, who are moving along as if they intended to spend the summer on or around the top floor. They should be spoken to at once.

THE MANAGER VS. MATERIAL

Does a good manager make a ball club—or, on the opposite side of the debate—does a good ball club make a good manager?

With the unseemly trouble sustained by McGraw, Mack, Griffith Stallings and others this season the old argument as to the comparative value of manager and material has returned in force. "Part of the experts insist that a good ball club makes a good manager, and another part still contends that a good manager means a good ball club, as the manager is over 50 per cent of the combination.

Just as there is a blend in the value of batting, pitching and infielding, so is there a blend in the value of a manager and his material. A bad manager can soon wreck good material. And a good manager can do better with average material than most others. But not even McGraw and Stallings can win pennants with poor material, unfit for the skill and speed and power needed in a pennant drive.

But the main answer is here: A poor manager will rarely ever build up a winning club, whereas a good manager in time will get the material and install the needed instinction and morale required to finish in front. This is proven by the records, that show McGraw and Mack with five pennants won with different line-ups—where after one machine had collapsed they were able to build up another fast enough to go the distance.

ROWLAND AND THE WHITE SOX.

One point at hand is the case of C. Rowland and the White Sox. Has Rowland put the Sox in first place—or, rather, have the Sox made Rowland look like a great manager?

Rowland had little to do with building up the White Sox machine. He was lucky enough to start with a winning combination. But, on the other paw, having started with this combination, he has shown ability at directing its ways.

Which proves again that it takes managerial ability plus the material to win—and that neither can arrive where the other is missing.

THE BLEND.

There must be a high average blend between the manager and his material, just as baseball itself is a blend of batting, fielding, pitching, baserunning and team play.

Hard hitting clubs have finished in the second division. So have clubs with fine pitching and good fielding. The winning club is the one that has the best of the blend—not the best of any one or two departments.

Connie Mack has had ball clubs finish as low as sixth place. Whereas Jake Stahl has won a world championship. Which is one answer as to managers. And then we have known managers with clubs that could bat, field, pitch and run the bases finish in fourth place. Which is another answer as to material minus proper managing.

"Has Ping Bodie joined the Italian army yet?" queries F. N. C. We don't think so. So far no report has come in announcing any blockade in the Alpine pass.

We ran into a golfer recently who had never beaten 95 in his life. One afternoon he returned an 86—nine strokes better than his best score. "How was it?" we asked. "On the level," he replied, "I never had so much bad luck in my life. I should have had an 80 or an 81 easy." Can you beat it? If so, what with?"

"Welsh will meet either Ritchie or White." But why keep us in this tense uncertainty, wrecking our digestion and sleep. When are we to know which it will be?

Harry Holland Proving Star With Minneapolis

Some three or four weeks since, when Manager Bill Smith was looking about for a man to cover the third bag for the Crackers, he bethought himself to query the Minneapolis club on the chances to get Harry Holland, local boy, and former member of the Tech Jackets and the Crackers for the job. The reply was that there was nothing doing. The Millers stated that Harry was not for sale.

The reason for this reply is evident in view of what Harry is doing for Joe Cantillon these days. Harry is at present holding down the second bag regularly, having displaced the veteran Jimmy Williams, and what is more, he is handling it to the entire satisfaction of all hands concerned. A few days ago, one of the Minneapolis papers, carrying a photograph of Harry, had the following comment to make:

"Millers have fallen upon dark and evil days, but there is a little ray of sunshine peeping forth from the clouds of defeat. The said ray is none other than tiny Harry Holland, who is performing in sensational style at the Miller second sack, and has finally achieved a batting mark of better than .300. Holland, in nine games played on the present road trip, has made but one error."

Incidentally, both Morley Jennings and Wallie Smith are also delivering in fine shape for the Millers. Smith is hitting for an average of .282, while Jennings is only two points back of him. Carl Cashion, former Washington pitcher, who is playing first base, leads the Millers in hitting, with .316. Holland is second with .302, and Smith and Jennings follow Harry with the marks given above.

FEW YEARS MORE WILL MAKE THIS LAD TITLE CONTENDER

R. T. JONES, JR.

Atlanta golfers are proud of the record that the two youthful local entries made in the big tournament which came to an end at East Lake Saturday. When Perry Adair made his game fight against Charlie Dexter on Friday, only to lose on the fifteenth green, he was warmly applauded. "Just putting it off a little, Perry," is the way the bunch framed its reassurance to the local lad.

But the glory which is Perry's should not be permitted to bedim the brilliant performance of the other Atlanta Juvenile, R. T. Jones, Jr. "Little Bob," the gallery all called him. "Fighting Bob" appeared to those who met him in match play as at least as appropriate.

This thirteen-year-old lad put up some of the most brilliant golf seen during the tournament. To begin with, he turned in an 83 in the qualifying round, being just one stroke above the card that won the low medal score cup, and leading the local entry. His work contributed largely to the success of the Athletic club team in capturing the team trophy for low qualifying score.

Then when match play was begun the youngster kept up his good work. He won his first match, but on his second he had the misfortune to run into Commodore Heard, while the grizzled veteran was having his best round of the tournament. The veteran Texan shot an even 80 and won. He had to do it, as "Little Bob" turned in his 82.

This defeat landed him in the second flight, and he worked his way into the finals of that division. In doing so, he had to dispose of W. M. Paul, the sterling player from Charlotte and state champion of North Carolina. Then when he reached the finals, he ran into another whirlwind exhibition. F. T. Clark, of Nashville, was his opponent, and the Nashville player lowered the amateur record for the course in stopping the local lad. With a little better luck, Bob might have found himself bunched in there with the select of the tourney right on through to the final round. Like Perry Adair, it just means a little more waiting. Within the next three or four years it is entirely possible that this pair may be fighting it out for the Dixie title between themselves.

Travelers in Tie With Volunteers

Deadlock After Six Slabmen Hurl Twelve Innings--Lookouts Defeated by Chicks, Pels Swamp Gulls

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 21.—Darkness found Nashville and Little Rock hopelessly deadlocked with the score standing 3 and 3 after twelve thrilling innings. Messenger's muff of Rogers' fly paved the way for a Nashville rally, which netted two runs, but he redeemed himself in the ninth, when he tied the score on a two-bagger. Rogers was taken out here and Bushelman stopped the scoring. Little Rock used three pitchers, Couchman being the most effective. Baker helped in the scoring of all Nashville runs and saved the game with a wonderful catch.

Chicks 3, Lookouts 1

MEMPHIS, June 21.—McDermott's home run after Roth had walked to first gave Memphis two runs in the eighth inning yesterday and a victory over Chattanooga, 3 to 1. Baldwin scored the other Memphis run when he stole home. Roth held Chattanooga to four hits.

Pels 9, Gulls 2

NEW ORLEANS, June 21.—New Orleans batsmen found Townsend and Karr for thirteen hits yesterday and defeated Mobile, 9 to 2. Karr relieved Townsend in the fifth with bases full and one out, retired the first batsman to face him and held two strikes on Thomas, when the latter drove a triple to right. Mobile scored in the first inning. Flick hitting for the circuit after Miller had singled.

PRINCE ALBERT

The toppy red bag, 5c

Yes, sir, P. A. puts a razor edge on your smoke-appetite-division that's nobby enough to be photographed! No other pipe and cigarette tobacco can be like Prince Albert, because no other tobacco can be made like Prince Albert. The patented process fixes that—and removes the tongue-bite and throat parch! Let that digest!

And that line of conversation is 24 kt., whether you play P. A. in your old jimmy pipe or roll it into a makin's cigarette. For you can put your little old blue-pencil O. K. right here that Prince Albert is a regular double-header for a single admission—as joy'us to your tongue and taste one way as the other!

Will the "rollers" kindly step forward for a spell and get some of this listen into their systems? Because Prince Albert certain and sure jams more joy into a makin's paper than ever before was figured up on two hands!

In the plain language of the hills, you can't any more resist such makin's tobacco than a bullfrog can pass up a piece of red flannel! Because P. A. hands to you everything any cigarette roller ever dreamed-out—rare flavor, and aroma, and mildness, and body; absolutely the best bet—the best smoke you or any other man ever did roll and put the fire to! Men, we tell you to wise up.

P. A. is crimp cut and stays put—which means rolling P. A. is as easy as falling off a log. And it's good to remember P. A. is put up in the toppy red bag especially for you "rollers." Sells for the price of a jitney ride, 5c.

Now, will the "pipers" kindly open both ears?

Here's tobacco that has made it possible for three men to smoke pipes where one smoked before!

Any way you hook it up, Prince Albert is tobacco insurance! Yes, sir, it guarantees your future as well as your present smokings! And just makes your tongue so jimmy pipe joy'us that your smoke appetite grows whopping big. You men who "dassn't," we say you go to P. A., natural-like! Because there isn't a bite in a barrel of this national joy smoke.

Unlimber your old jimmy pipe! Dig it out of the dark corner, jam it brimful of P. A. And make fire with a match! Me-o-my!

The tidy red tin, 10c

You get acquainted with Prince Albert in the toppy red bag, 5c; or tidy red tin, 10c, but for the double-back-action-joy, you buy a crystal-glass pound humidor. And then you're set! You see, it has the sponge-moistener top and keeps P. A. at the highest top-notch point of perfection. Prince Albert is also sold in pound and half-pound tin humidors.

Automobile Concern Leases the Three-Story Business Building at No. 375 Peachtree Street Just South of Currier, Over $15,000 Worth of Building Permits Are Taken on Monday Morning, Including $12,000 Residence

Turman & Calhoun have leased for Mahoney & Manry the three-story building recently completed at 375 Peachtree street. This building is on the east side of the street just south of Currier street, and is one of the buildings erected in the Crass subdivision by Ben J. Massell.

The lessee is the Thompson Motor company and the term of the lease is three years. The consideration was not disclosed. The building occupies a twenty-foot lot.

BUILDING SPURT.

Building made another good showing Monday, when something over $15,000 worth of building permits were taken during the morning.

J. S. Slicer took a permit for $12,000 for a frame and brick veneer residence he will build on Peachtree circle, and there were some permits for small frame houses that swelled the aggregate.

At present there is nothing to contradict the previous feeling that the aggregate of June business will make a good showing.

STATUS OF MARKET.

Although there is undoubtedly a good feeling and improved business in building and renting and leasing lines, just now there are no unusual developments in sales or exchanges.

Something of this condition is due to the approach of the midsummer season and the fact that the buying class of people takes its vacations about this time of year.

At Noon Market in New York Was 8 to 11 Points Down From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 21.—Easy Liverpool cables and a favorable weather map inspired some scattered selling in the cotton market this morning, and after opening steady at a decline of 4 to 8 points, active months sold about 8 points under Saturday's closing figures. Houses with Liverpool connections were moderate sellers on this decline, but general business continued very quiet, and offerings were well enough taken to give the market a steady undertone.

Switching from July to October at a difference of about 40 or 42 points constituted the bulk of the business during the morning, and prices showed little further change with active months ruling 8 to 12 points net lower shortly after midday.

A bearish report from a prominent traveling expert on crop conditions in Texas and northern Louisiana, was followed by rather more active selling in the middle afternoon with price easing off to a net decline of about 14 to 7 points.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 21.—Under the influence of lower Liverpool future prices than due and favorable weather conditions over the belt the market opened at a decline today. In the first half hour of business prices lost 7 to 8 points.

Easiness in the spot department was reported and prices of futures sagged to a level 8 to 11 points down. At noon the market was dull.

MONTGOMERY ADVERTISER'S REPORT.

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Reports to the Advertiser from every county in the state say considerable improvement was noted in the general condition of the cotton crop throughout the state during the past week. Acreage reduction, heavy decrease in the use of fertilizers, damage wrought by the boll weevil and the many additional acres at first planted in cotton and then turned under and devoted to other crops, all tend to reduce materially the ultimate size of the crop in Alabama this year, and conservative estimates place it at not more than 60 per cent of the crop of last year, if even that high.

While the cotton crop as a whole will prove disappointing, bumper wheat, oats and corn crops are being raised in all parts of the state, while beans, peas, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, melons and other crops are reported as promising excellent yields.

The invasion of the boll weevil has become a positive menace to the existence of cotton in some of the counties, while in others the presence of the pest is admittedly causing damage.

Frank was given a number and a suit of convict stripes, denoting the lowest grade prisoner. After he makes a record at the farm, in the course of a month or longer, he will be relieved of the stripes and given a suit of prison gray.

Frank stated to The Journal correspondent this morning that he had no advance notice regarding the commutation. As a result he left the Fulton county tower without having time to pack his grip.

The first intimation came when at 11:24 Sheriff Mangum visited his cell and led him away. Six minutes later, at 11:30, the sheriff, his prisoner and the guards left the tower, where subsequently they boarded a Central of Georgia train, making the run to Macon and thence by motor car to the prison farm.

RAILROAD LAND SUIT LOST BY GOVERNMENT

Sales Enjoined, However, in Violations of Conditions of the Grant

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The government today lost its supreme court suit to have declared forfeited to it the unsold portion of the Oregon and California railroad land grants, amounting to some 2,300,000 acres valued at more than $30,000,000.

The railroad was enjoined, however, from future sales in violation of the conditions of the grant, and until congress has reasonable time to act.

Justice McKenna, for the court, held untenable the government's claim that the company's violation of conditions to the grants worked a forfeiture. He held the conditions were in the nature of enforcible "covenants."

The decision gives congress six months to act in the case.

NEW WAR LOAN WILL BE ISSUED IN SMALL BONDS

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 21—Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, announced today that the loan of $1,250,000,000 authorized by the house of commons last week for war purposes would be issued tonight. It will be put out at par and will bear 4 1-2 per cent interest.

The chancellor stated that the total realized deficit between revenue and expenditure up to last Saturday amounted to $2,590,000. The daily war expenditure now amounts to nearly $15,000,000 and still is rising.

The new loan is to be issued in small bonds of from 5 pounds to 25 pounds, ($25 to $125) which would be obtainable through the postoffices.

A Silencer

Mrs. Sharp (to next-door neighbor)—How do you like the design of our new wall paper?

Neighbor—It seems to me to be rather loud.

Mrs. Sharp—Yes, that's why we selected it. We thought it might drown the sound of your daughter's piano playing!

STOCKS

Baldwin Locomotive, Federal Smelting, Mexican Petroleum and Third Ave. Firm

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 21.—War shares again were the sole features of interest on the resumption of trading today. Baldwin Locomotive, with a gain of 2⅜, attained a new high record of 68¾, and Westinghouse rose 1¼. Among the inactive specialties Distillers' Securities added a fraction to last week's steady advance and Cuban sugar gained almost 2 points. Local tractions were strong on the approaching completion of Interborough's plan of capital readjustment. Chesapeake and Ohio reflected further pressure and some of the more prominent issues, including Union Pacific, Reading and United States Steel lost substantial fractions.

The market broadened in the afternoon, Reading and U. S. Steel being the stimulating features at advances of a point each. Among obscure industrials steel foundries was conspicuous for its gain of almost 5 points.

Bonds were firm.

Don't Rock or Sing the Baby to Sleep

Don't rock the baby to sleep. Don't use the old-fashioned lullaby to send your infant to slumberland. The baby should be put down and left to go to sleep by his own devices. He should be shielded from strong light in the day time and should be accustomed to going to sleep in the dark at night.

This is the substance of a section of the latest bulletin issued by the Detroit board of health. The pamphlet is prepared by Dr. William H. Price, city health officer.

"It is better for both baby and mother that the baby should sleep alone," advises Doctor Price. "A basket with an excelsior mattress covered with a folded blanket is a sufficient bed for the baby; or the baby may lie in two chairs placed together, facing each other. Avoid cradles and cribs with patent rocking devices.

"During the first months the baby should sleep twenty hours out of the twenty-four. He should be awakened when feedings are due until regularity of habits is established. At 6 months a normal baby should sleep sixteen hours, including long morning and afternoon naps, and at 1 year about fourteen hours. A daily nap should be cotinued as long as possible into childhood."

Dr. Price lays emphasis on the value of fresh air. He says fresh air and sunshine are as necessary to babies as to plants.

"In the summer months keep the baby out of a hot kitchen," he advises, "and away from a hot stove. Let him spend most of the time out of doors. Seek the coolest places possible, the shady streets, the cool parks and the boats. Avoid too much clothing, shirt and diaper being quite sufficient during the hot days. Keep flies and mosquitoes away by the use of screens or netting.

"Avoid overdressing at all times. Tight bands or other clothing of any kind, which restrict free movements, must not be worn."—From the Detroit News.

Wheat Closed 3 1-8 to 4 1-8 Cents Down--Corn, Oats, Pork and Sides Lower

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 21.—Improved weather brought about a sharp wheat decline today. Opening ⅜c to 1¼c lower, prices underwent an additional sag.

Absence of foreign inquiry caused a still further wheat setback. The close was steady at 3 to 3⅞c net decline.

Corn also was under selling pressure, owing to better weather. The opening, unchanged to ⅞c lower, was followed by continued depression.

No important corn rally took place, and corn closed steady at 1⅝@1¾ to 2¾@2⅞c under Saturday.

Oats declined with other grain.

Provisions lacked support.

GRAIN MARKET OPINIONS.

Finley, Barrell: An early change in the weather conditions would result in a sharp decline in wheat. We advise sales of corn and oats on all upturns.

Bartlett, Frazier: Without some better foreign inquiry for wheat it is difficult to see how the market can take any amount of hedging pressure. Still feel that the corn market has seen the effect of resent unfavorable weather: see nothing whatever on which to expect higher oat values.

Harris, Winthrop & Co.: "The weather bureau says that there is no prospect in the immediate future of a cessation of the protracted unsettled weather and this continues to be the dominating influence."

GRAIN CLEARANCES.

"Bride" He Sought Was Man

(New York World.)

Alighting from an eastbound Erie train at Nutley, N. J., the other morning, a tall, rawboned, muscular man asked the station agent:

"Can you direct me to 225 Park avenue?"

The directions were given and the stranger, plainly excited, started for Park avenue. Nugent Freeman, who lives at No. 225, was just coming from his house when the man stepped up to him and said:

"I am looking for Miss Neugene Freeman who lives here."

"There's no Neugene Freeman here," Freeman replied. "I'm Nugent Freeman and the only person by that name in Nutley. There's no Neugene Freeman, and never was one."

"But there must be a Neugene!" cried the stranger. "Why, I've got her picture and I've come from Northland, Mich., to see her and marry her. I've never seen her, but I love her. Here's her photograph. She sent it to me."

He showed the picture of a pretty girl.

'And I have her letters,'' he added. "She brought me all the way here."

"Are you Zebulon Lamphear?" Freeman asked.

"I am," cried the stranger. "If there's no Neugene Feeman, how did you know my name?'' and he bristled with anger.

"Because some practical joker has played a low down trick on you and me," explained Freeman. "I have been getting letters addressed to Miss Neugene Freeman for two months. I opened them, but never answered them."

"I know the questions I asked never were answered," said Lamphear, "but I got more letters and was invited to visit my Neugene. That's the reason I'm here. If I don't find Neugene, I'll find that joker."

"I wish I could help you," said Freeman, "but I can't. Good-day. I must get to work.'

The first letter received by Freeman from Lamphear told how he had placed an advertisement in a matrimonial paper for a wife, and told how pleased he was with the photograph and letter that had come in response. Other letters followed.

Through the morning Lamphear sat on the Freeman stoop. Then he arose and, looking the picture of dejection, made his way to the railway station.

"Know any practical jokers in town?" he asked the agent.

"No; can't say I do, offhand," replied the agent.

"Well, please put me on the first train out of here. I'll be more than obliged," sighed the big man, and an hour later he was leaving Nutley.

He Settled the Question

A discussion once arose in the University of Cambridge whether doctors at law or doctors in medicine should hold precedence. The chancellor asked whether the thief or the hangman preceded at an execution. Being told that the thief usually took the lead: "Well, then," said the chancellor, "let the doctors in law have the precedence, and let doctors in medicine be next in rank."—From the London Evening Standard.

Weather Report, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP.

E. F. Hutton & Co. say: Liverpool market very soft today. We were due to open 10 to 12 points lower. Generally fair weather prevailed over the cotton belt yesterday and is indicated for today and tomorrow. Maximum temperatures of 100 degrees or over occurred yesterday afternoon, over the extreme southwest. Indications point to a spell of hot dry weather. Goods trade advices state that so well assured are agents that prices will be higher for cotton goods if present prospects for cotton are maintained, whatever may be the course of general business, that offers are being turned down unless the asking prices are paid. Still favor long side of cotton.

Liverpool's decline undoubtedly due to German successes in Galicia, which means prolongation of the war. No reason why our market should follow as war is now construed a bullish factor, and as the purchasing power of gold is decreasing, prices of cotton should advance correspondingly. Watch out for high temperatures in Oklahoma and Texas this week.—M. D. Burnley.

Forecast:

Louisiana: Tonight and Tuesday fair; not much change in temperature; light variable winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Tuesday generally fair.

William Ray & Co. say: "Narrow fluctuations with very little business has been the condition the past week. Plenty of cotton at all important markets with no material change in crop condition continues a check to any increased speculative buying, while war and uncertainty of the new crop prevents any aggressive short selling. The blockade policy of holding up all shipments will soon check further shipments. Our American spinners are well stocked and show no desire to even make any offers for new crops."

Map shows cloudy Atlantics, fair rest of belt. No rain except in Tennessee mountains. High temperatures western and central belt.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow, Jones summary: Today last decision day in supreme court until October. New British loan expected to be $2,500,000. Governor of Pennsylvania vetoes bill to repeal extra crew law. James J. Hill is quoted as saying that there is nothing in sight to show that the general business outside of war orders has improved or is improving. Court signs order permitting International Steam Pump to sell its Cramp shipbuilding stock. United States war department estimates that it would cost $800,000,000 to put an army of 500,000 men in Mexico for one year. Ten months' exports including April valued at $2,225,823,986 compared with $2,045,774,480 a year ago. Inside iron workers in New York City start strike today. Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers representing 200,000 men fail in an effort to secure increased wages. D. A. Thomas denies he is to become purchasing agent for allies in America. Twelve industrials average 91.31 up .04; Twenty railways 93.11, up .04.

E. F. Hutton & Co. say:

The forced selling of Pennsylvania last week is accounted for today by the veto of the governor of Pennsylvania of the appeal of the full crew bill. This is very unfortunate at this time. Hill's interview states that he sees no improvement in business of outside of the war orders. After tue exaggerated rise in metals, the recession in prices is perfectly matured. This has brought about realizing in that group of stocks. Interboros should be one of the active futures this week as the consumption of the reorganization is expected. In a market made up entirely of specialties it is very difficult to give any intelligent opinion. It looks, however, as though the market could be bought on weak spots.

New York—The decision in Harvester suit is expected today. The stock is getting a little more active.

It is expected that Third avenue will go on a 4 per cent dividend basis this fall.

Preferred as a 6 per cent stock will look attractive around present prices. The common with no state or government tax to pay, should be a very active feature.

Delaware, Lackawanna and Western relationship with Lackawanna and Western Coal company in its coal business was declared by supreme court to be in violation of commodities clause because of the road's ability to control production and prices.

GRAIN GOSSIP

King, Farnum & Co. say:

While showers are early predictions, think there is enough better weather in many districts to increase offerings. First movement wheat promises to depress prices unless foreigners should commence to buy heavily which hardly probable.

Corn: Is likely to continue to be a sale on hard spots with so much subsoil moisture and with Argentine competition.

Liverpool—Spot wheat unchanged to 1d lower; corn urged; oats missing.

Paris—Wheat spot, half higher; flour 7 cents higher to 10 cents lower.

Liverpool—Wheat this week 4,464,000 against 3,968,000 last week against 1,936,000 last year; corn 876,000 against 995,000 last week against 485,000 last year.

General liquidation in wheat.

Grain belt forecast:

Illinois: Partly cloudy tonight; Indiana probably fair, not so much change in temperature.

Missouri: Part cloudy tonight and Tuesday unsettled in south portion cooler tonight.

West is generally fair tonight and Tuesday cooler in west portion Minnesota tonight and Tuesday, slightly cooler tonight.

Iowa fair and slightly cooler tonight, Tuesday part cloudy.

North and South Dakota: Fair tonight and Tuesday, not much change in temperature.

Hard Water

(Youth's Companion.)

Do you realize how hard water is when a boat sails through it at full speed? Water passing at fifty miles an hour is not the limpid liquid we are accustomed to bathe in. If you put your arm overboard from a hydroplane, running fifty miles an hour, and strike a wave crest, the probability is that you will break your arm or wrist, because at that speed the water has not time to give, or even to change shape, and striking it is like striking so much metal.

If a swordsman should enter one of the great hydraulic quarries, where a stream of water, under enormous head, is used to wash down hillsides, and attempt to cut into one of those streams, his sword would fly in pieces without being able to penetrate the water. The stream is like a bar of iron.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Atlanta and vicinity: Showers and cooler tonight; Tuesday partly cloudy.

Sunday was a very warm day over the southern states, and at 7 a. m. this morning the temperature was still 80 degrees at Montgomery, Macon, Atlanta, Augusta, Charleston and points south. Showers with cooler weather prevailed towards the northwest, Knoxville reporting 66 degrees at 7 a. m. with rain, the rain area extending northwest from that point to Williston, N. D. St. Louis received 1.70 inches. A moderate storm area exists over Manitoba, and another not accompanied by rain over the southwest.

Generally fair weather prevailed over the cotton belt and the greater portion of the Rocky mountain and plateau regions and Pacific coast districts.

Temperatures in the west and northwest are no longer quite so low, though generally below 50 degrees at 7 a. m. in the plateau region and on the Pacific coast.

A light shower with somewhat cooler weather is indicated for tonight. Tuesday will be partly cloudy.

The Fastest Camera

(Youth's Companion.)

Captain F. J. Behr, of the United States coast artillery, has invented a camera that marks a great advance in the art of photographing swiftly moving objects. It differs from the ordinary camera in size and in the mechanism of its shutter. It is almost four feet high. An electric motor that makes several thousand revolutions a second works the shutter; and since the speed of the motor can be accurately adjusted, the photographer can determine the length of exposure down to one-five-thousandth of a second. The new camera has photographed mortor shells at the moment when they left the muzzle of the gun, and afterward, and has shown the curious "smoke ring" or "gas ring" that accompanies the projectile when it emerges from the gun. It may yet help to determine exactly what happens when a modern high power shell plows its way through solid steel.

MR. WARBURG ON OUR FINANCIAL FUTURE.

By JOHN M. OSKISON.

At the Pan-American financial conference in Washington, Paul M. Warburg, a member of the federal reserve board, said some things of interest to investors. He is an experienced international banker, a wise observer, and, I believe, a dependable prophet.

"It is certain," he said at one point in his talk, "that the United States will be in a safer condition if in the future when placing securities to be issued for the development of our own properties we rely to a larger extent than in the past upon our own markets."

In other words, we shall not send good bonds to market in Europe merely because we can sell them at a slightly higher price.

This idea, Mr. Warburg insisted, must become firmly fixed, even though we know that for some years after the end of the great war Europe will not be able to bid for our securities.

In the future the United States will not only have to take care of its own demands for capital, but it will certainly have to finance a considerable portion of the legitimate demands made by the Central and South American republics. The European war has taught this lesson to all the Americas.

For the average American, this Washington conference may not seem significant. "It's a pow-wow of the big bankers," most people will say, if they take the trouble to read anything of it. But let us see if the average citizen who saves a little and invests it isn't very vitally afftected:

In the last twenty years we have sold in Europe probably more than five billions of securities. In the same period, the Central and South American countries have probably sold to Europe more than that amount of securities.

In the next twenty years the Americans (from Canada to the Argentine) will need a great deal more than ten billions of new capital. Our own needs will grow vastly. If we are to dispense largely with borrowing from Europe, and also help largely to meet the capital demands of Canada and the lower Americas we shall have to dig deep.

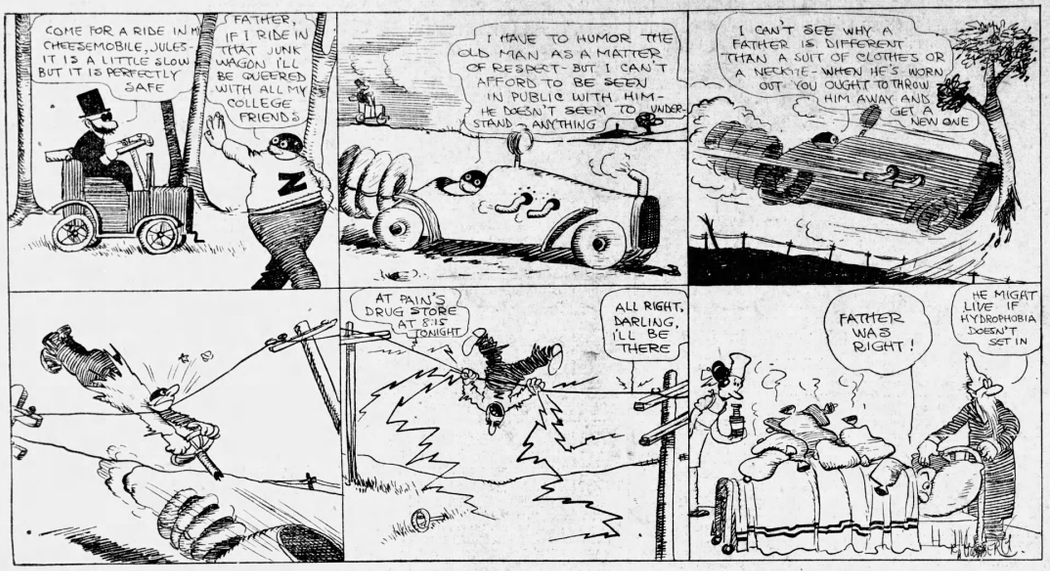

Returns on capital will be better. The owner of $100 will feel the effects of the new demands as well as the rich capitalists.

GOOD ROADS' SCOUTS VISITING AT DOTHAN, ALA.

DOTHAN, Ala., June 21.—Arrangements are being made for the reception and entertainment of the tri-state tour party from Columbus, Ga., which will visit Dothan June 21 and 24, on its scouting trip locating a highway from Columbus to St. Andrews Bay. According to the official itinerary the party will reach Dothan at 4:45 p. m. Monday, June 21, and make a short stop, proceeding to Marianna for the night. On the return trip the party will reach Dothan Thursday, June 24, at 12:30 p. m. and spend some time in the city. At this time there will be a meeting attended by prominent citizens of the city at which plans for the highway will be discussed. Much of the proposed highway has already been constructed, only a few connecting links being necessary to make it complete. It is planned to make it a branch or fork of the Dixie highway and will traverse one of the richest sections of the south.

OPPOSE LICENSES FOR SALOONS AND CLUBS

Council Urged at Mass Meeting to Revoke Permits Now in Existence

Over 1,200 people at the Men and Religion Forward Movement mass meeting in the Grand theater Sunday afternoon unanimously adopted resolutions urging the mayor and council to refuse new licenses for saloons and locker clubs at Monday's meeting of council and to revoke all licenses now in operation that expire July 1.

If the mayor and council do not do this, the resolution provides that a committee shall be appointed by John J. Eagan, chairman of the meeting, to take out injunctions aimed at closing, by order of court, the saloons and locker clubs.

In the resolutions the attention of the mayor and the chief of police is called to the proviso of the Georgia prohibition law to the effect that the possession of a United States liquor license is prima facie evidence of violation of the prohibition law.

John J. Eagan, elected permanent chairman of the meeting, was authorized to appoint a committee to appear before council Monday afternoon and present the resolutions.

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, and Marion Jackson, were the speakers at the meeting.

"Atlanta in the Melting Pot," was the subject of Dr. White's talk. He blamed the newspapers largely for the breaking up of what he termed the "famous Atlanta spirit" as it existed when he came here fifteen years ago.

"The great row in Atlanta," he said, "is not the closing of the segregated district, but is the applying of the prohibition law to all alike."

Marion Jackson, speaking with "Thirty Pieces of Silver" as his subject," also rapped the newspapers. He said the Men and Religion bulletins were not hurting Atlanta, but that the newspapers were hurting Atlanta.

"Jim Woodward and myself are not so different at the bottom," said Marion Jackson. "The day has been where I stood just where he stands, and I have talked eloquently against just what I am advocating now."

He took a rap at beer and liquor advertisements printed in newspapers, paid a final tribute to Mayor Woodward as a man, who, "whatever else he might be, is not a hypocrite," and closed his talk by urging the mayor and council to refuse to issue new licenses and to refuse to renew the present ones.

COOLER WEATHER THE PROMISE FOR TUESDAY

Temperature of 93 Sunday Afternoon Record So Far This Summer

A temperature of 92 degrees recorded Sunday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock by the weather bureau thermometer is the highest of the present summer.

Although not the hottest weather on record by any means, it was hot as anybody wants to experience. Excessive humidity made it hotter than the thermometer showed, and there was little if any breeze to temper the heat.

Monday was nearly as hot, with a temperature of 90 at 12 o'clock and the mercury still rising.

The forecast is showers Monday night and cooler, with partly cloudy weather Tuesday.

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL BREAKS ARM

While playing with several friends on the back porch of her home, 323 Bellwood avenue, Sunday evening, Leona Horn, twelve years old, slipped and fell over the bannisters, striking against a pair of old andirons on the ground. She was taken to Grady hospital where it was found her left arm was broken at the wrist.

BIG AUTOMOBILE TOUR STARTS AT COLUMBUS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 21.—Tri-state automobile tour composing a car one hundred persons headed by Congressmen Adamson and Park, en route for lower river points, and an inspection of the new government canal to St. Andrews bay, left Columbus 6 a. m. The party reached Eufaula on schedule time without a mishap, according to private wire report portions road bad.

SOUTHERN COTTON OIL CO. WILL BANQUET EMPLOYES

Treat Will Be Recognition of Efficient and Faithful Service

The Southern Cotton Oil company will tender to its district office employes a banquet at the Hotel Ansley Monday night as a slight recognition of the efficient and faithful service performed during the fiscal year of this company, which closes on May 31.

An elaborate menu has been provided and the banquet promises to be a happy one.

The Atlanta district of the Southern Cotton Oil company is one of the largest of the organization and is in charge of P. R. Lamar, district manager, and E. P. Shivers, assistant district manager. In addition to the two officers named above there will be present at the banquet the following:

ROME COMMISSIONERS TO REGULATE MILK SALES

ROME, Ga., June 21.—Strict regulation of dairies was decided upon at the last meeting of the city commissioners. Before any one will be allowed to operate a dairy in this city he is required to register with the city clerk and secure a permit. No permit will be issued until an inspection of the barns and farm shows that they are in sanitary condition. City officials declare that by keeping a close watch on the city's milk supply they expect to practically eliminate typhoid fever in Rome.

LIQUOR LICENSE QUESTION BEFORE COUNCIL MONDAY

Permits for Clubs, Beer Saloons and Pool Rooms Will Be Considered

General council meets at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and at that time will consider applications of locker clubs, near-beer saloons and pool rooms for permits to operate.

The police committee will submit a report recommending certain of these for license. Nineteen locker clubs are given in this list. No opposition to them has developed in council so far.

The report of the committee also recommends licensing near-beer saloons and pool rooms which operate jointly. The mayor has expressed himself as opposed to joint pool rooms and near-beer saloons, so if council passes this resolution, he is likely to oppose it when it comes to him for signature.

The special bond committee of council will make an effort to get council to adopt a report for a $3,200,000 bond issue. There is considerable opposition to the report on the ground that the amount named is too large.

AMERICANS ARRESTED IN RUSSIAN WAR ZONE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—John Reed, an American war correspondent, and Boardman Robinson, an artist, are under arrest at Kholm, Russia, for having entered the military zone without permission. Ambassador Marye at Petrograd today asked information which would establish their status and secure their release.

MR. GORDON CARMICHAEL IS DEAD AT JACKSON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

JACKSON, Ga., June 21.—Mr. Gordon Carmichael, one of the best known young men in this city, died at his home Sunday afternoon. He had been in feeble health for several months and recently retired from business.

Mr. Carmichael was about thirty-three years old and belonged to a prominent family of Butts county. He is survived by his wife and a small son, his mother, Mrs. D. N. Carmichael, two brothers Slaton Carmichael, of Jackson, and Obe Carmichael, of Washington state; three sisters, Mrs. W. F. Malaler, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. J. Singleton, of California, and Mrs. J. M. Leach, of Jackson.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

U. S. CLAIM ON LAND IN N. C. DECLARED VALID

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The title of the United States to 5,000 acres of timber land in Clay county, North Carolina, contested by the Hiawassee Lumber company was upheld today by the supreme court. A lower court had held the government's claim invalid because of irregularities of registration.

ALABAMA FARMERS IN DUEL WITH SHOTGUNS

DOTHAN, Ala., June 21.—As aresult of a duel with shotguns Leslie Dukes is dead and Will Peterson is dangerously wounded. Both are Henry county farmers living about 7 miles from Columbia. The cause of the trouble has not been learned but it is said that the men were neighbors and that bad blood had existed between them for some time.
